DEWEY THRILLS STATION CROWD AS HE DEPARTS

Waves and Writes Autographs.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

Gov. Dewey wound up a busy 48 hour visit to Chicago, during which he accepted the Republican Presidential nomination and laid the groundwork for the 1944 campaign, when he boarded the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited and rode out of the La Salle st. station at 5:30 p. m. yesterday bound for Albany, N. Y. A rousing reception awaits him there.

Herbert Brownell Jr.

The new G. O. P. leader, Mrs. Dewey and Gov. Green of Illinois stood on the rear platform and waved to crowds of homeward bound commuters as the train departed with four extra cars added to accommodate the Dewey party. The passengers included 35 news photographers and reporters, the New York executive's staff and the three men who master-minded his nomination fight, Herbert Brownell Jr., newly elected national chairman; J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman, and Edward F. Jaeckle, New York state chairman.

Escorted Thru Crowded Station.

Word had spread about the impending departure of Dewey, and the station was crowded when Gov. and Mrs. Dewey and Gov. Green were escorted to the waiting train by 20 policemen.

The two governors flanked Mrs. Dewey as the nominee smiled and waved his panama hat in response to requests from news photographers. After the flashing of the camera bulbs died down a girl stepped forward hesitatingly and thrust up an autograph book to Gov. Dewey. He pulled out his pen, and there was an immediate rush from all sides as papers of all sizes and descriptions were held in outstretched hands.

Autographs Packages and Hat.

The Dewey signature was written on books, magazines, boxes of candy, letters, scraps of paper pulled from purses and pockets, even on commuters' large shopping bundles. A soldier pushed up his hat and Dewey scribbled his signature in that. A sailor offered his furlough papers. The nominee reached over the heads of the crowd to get and sign the card offered by a small girl, perched on the shoulders of a man.

Mrs. Dewey was just as busy as her husband. She smiled when she turned one piece of paper over and noted she had autographed the picture of a baby.

Only a few hours before his departure for New York Brownell, 40 year old New York lawyer and warm friend of Gov. Dewey, was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican national committee.

Says Foe Can't Split Party.

Brownell took the campaign helm shortly after Dewey warned members of the G. O. P. national committee they could expect in the anxious months ahead to find "all the busy propaganda agencies of the national government directing their efforts toward division in our party."

"You may be sure," the nominee said in a surprise appearance before the group, "that they are experts in division. They have been creating the impression of a divided American people for a good many years, but they are not going to succeed in dividing us."

The New York governor pledged the Republican party to "a gigantic effort in this campaign toward saving the Republic and the winning of the war." He thanked committee members for their part in his nomination and predicted victory for "the

CARDS OFFERED TO SERVICE MEN SEEKING BALLOT

The simple machinery for issuing and collecting Illinois soldiers' ballots for the November election already is in operation, the first step consisting of providing postcard forms on which the service man applies for his ballot and swears to his qualification to vote.

The cards were available yesterday at the office of County Clerk Flynn, who is charged by the special soldier's vote law with preparing them, and at the office of the election board. All down state counties also were reported to have them ready.

Must Swear to Age.

On the card form, the soldier gives his home and military address and swears before any commissioned office or noncommissioned officer of the grade of sergeant or higher that he is a citizen and will be of voting age on or before Nov. 7.

County Clerk Flynn said yesterday that some 4,000 ballot requests already are on hand and John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the election board, which has jurisdiction in Chicago and some suburbs, said about 12,000 had been received.

In Illinois, the official ballot is that set up by the special session, giving the service man a vote for every office. In states that adopted the federal "bobtail" ballot, the soldier will get a chance to vote only for President and Vice President and members of congress by party designation.

Ballots Ready Sept. 13.

Ballots will be ready Sept. 13, which is the date set for certification by the county clerk to the election board, following the procedure set for independent filings and withdrawals.

Registration, in its regular course is under way now in both offices. Voters under the election board register now at the board's offices in the city hall, which will be open Monday even tho it will be a virtual holiday. Those under the county clerk may register now in their own city or village halls.

TEN MEN INVEST $1,500 IN HOPE OF BEING TRIMMED

Paterson, N. J., June 30 [Special].—One way to get your hair cut these days without waiting is to buy a barber shop and hire the proprietor.

Ten business men here decided that was the only way they'd get tonsorial service, so today they closed a deal whereby they will become owners on July 10 of the shop of Joseph Russak.

With the shop, which costs $1,500, go Russak's services at $40 per week.

Each of the 10 men put up $150 for the shop and agreed to pay Russak $4 a week each.

Delay Refused on Trustee for Surface Lines

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court reiterated at a court hearing yesterday that while he is not opposed to the city's scheme for municipal ownership of a unified traction system, he is not going to be a "hatchet man" and use his powers to force investors in the surface lines and elevated road to accept the city's terms of purchase.

His remarks were made after Joseph Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, pleaded that the court leave the surface lines in receivership rather than carry out a threat to place them in bankruptcy. Grossman said that the price set by the city [84 millions for both properties] was more than fair and that bankruptcy litigation might interfere with the municipal plan.

Recalls Earlier Valuation.

"How am I interfering?" Judge Igoe demanded. "The city can carry on its plan, and if it makes a go of it, our blessing will be on it. But you are not going to use this court to squeeze out the junior security holders."

He recalled that in a unification scheme turned down by the Illinois commerce commission last year it was proposed to issue 179 millions of securities to reimburse the present owners.

"Is the court expected to squeeze the values from that figure down to 84 millions, altho the commission has accepted 128 millions as a fair value for rate making?" the judge asked. "I won't carry that ball. Let the city play its side of the street and I will play mine."

$4,000,000 Waste Charged.

At another point Judge Igoe said that the city "stood with the bankers" whom he had criticized for standing pat for full payment of the surface lines' first mortgage bond issue of 72 millions.

The hearing was called to consider the bankruptcy matter. Attorneys Joseph A. Struett and Charles Haffenberg urged action, holding that bankruptcy would hasten a final traction settlement. Under bankruptcy rules the bondholders' committees now functioning would be dismissed and the court would appoint a single trustee to act for all investors.

Struett asserted in a petition that four millions had been spent by the surface lines for planning without results in 17 years.

Bankruptcy Arguments Set.

His contention that bankruptcy would be faster than the equity receivership was disputed by the city and the bondholders' committees and by the First National bank, the Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Northern Trust company. Arguments on the matter were set for August 16.

Atty. William J. Friedman presented a sketchy plan for separate reorganizations of the surface and elevated companies, involving a request for the setting up of a capital structure with the aid of the commerce commission and a later unification, to be accomplished by arbitration if there was no agreement. Judge Igoe told Friedman, who represents first mortgage bondholders, to proceed with the planning.

50,000 MORE TIRES TO BE SOLD IN JULY; TUBES RATION FREE

The office of price administration will release only 7,000 new passenger automobiles for sale in July, but has increased by 50,000 the number of tires to be sold during the month and has taken inner tubes for all types of motor vehicles off rationing, it was announced last night.

Only 30,000 new passenger cars are available in the nation, the OPA said. The 7,000 allowance for July is 22 per cent under that for June and 30 per cent below the May total. There were 530,000 new cars on hand when rationing started more than two years ago.

The OPA allocated 3,900,000 new passenger car tires for distribution in July and August, but said that few B card motorists will be able to get any until the demands of essential C card holders are met. Charles F. Phillips, OPA ration chief in Washington, also revealed that June tire authorizations were 300,000 more than the quota. Motorists got a total of 1,900,000, compared with the 3,900,000 to be distributed in July and August.

Nazis Predict Invasion of South France from Corsica

LONDON, June 30 (AP).—Jean Paquis, commentator for the German controled Paris radio, predicting an invasion of southern France, said today that "the harbors of Corsica would be the starting point and landings are expected in the region of Sete. Rumors that operations already have started are not confirmed tonight."

Robot Chases Tribune Man in Stork Race

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 30.—It is a hectic business—becoming a father in this section of robotland.

Called out by an urgent phone message I engaged a taxi with enough gasoline to make a long trip to my wife. The taxi driver was sympathetic while the miles unrolled as his passenger speculated on the chances for a boy or a girl.

All went well until a couple of miles from my destination. The taxi driver peered back. He asked me to lower the windows as he shoved down harder on the accelerator. The cab, of ancient vintage, rattled and clattered protestingly, but it didn't drown out the unmistakable phut-phut-phut of an approaching robot bomb.

Cab Goes Right Way.

Then everything happened at once. The phut-phut stopped. The cab slowed down. The driver steered sharply across the road toward a concrete warden's hut, yelling: "Let's get in here."

The idea was fine but tardy. Came the sound of the sky being ripped like a huge sheet of calico and a deafening bang. The driver swore he had not lost control of the cab, but whether it was the driver or the blast the cab swung back across to the left side of the road where it belonged, mounted the sidewalk and jerked to a stop with the fender scraping a brick wall.

"Blimey, that was a close one," said the driver, backing out. "The old bus has got more sense than me. She ran away from it."

The last mile was uneventful. The nurse was smiling. "Did you hear the bomb?" she asked. And, in the same breath, "He weighs nine and a half pounds."

Bomb Kills Babies.

Other robot bombs droned over southern England all day, bringing death to many, including babies in a rural nursing home, and causing widespread damage.

An official tabulation showed that five babies and five members of the nursery staff had been rescued alive during the day. Five babies and three nurses were listed as missing.

The gliding, pilotless bombs also hit hotels, shops, dwellings, office buildings, and buses.

SMASH GERMAN TANKS; GAIN IN CIRCLING DRIVE

Planes Break Up Armored Force.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 1 [Saturday].—Aided by planes massed in strong force for a blow at the base of their Odon river bridgehead, British forces yesterday pushed their salient closer to nearly encircled Caen from the south. They also recorded new gains north and west of the stronghold against strong armored reserves.

The German radio reported the British already had begun "a serious assault on one of the roads leading to Caen," and that "two tank divisions are assaulting the town in one narrow sector to the south."

[German broadcasts said a United States tank division had entered the battle southwest of Caen.]

All types of medium, light, and fighter bombers blasted wooded areas in the Villers-Bocage region late last night to break up concentrated German tank formations which earlier in the day had thrust a mile long wedge into the British salient.

Nazis Hurl in Reserves.

The allied war bulletin said that the British drive had "compelled the enemy to throw in strong armored reserves," but despite "repeated counter-attacks by these formations, our positions not only have been held but were improved."

West of Caen, a slight advance to within half a mile of Carpiquet airfield was reported, while in the northern sector five villages were captured in heavy fighting that put the British within 11 miles of completely encircling the city. The British battleship Rodney was hurling 16 inch shells into the area. These gains drew tighter the pincer the allies are closing on the Orne river port from the west and north.

[The Paris radio said allied troops had made new landings east of the Orne and captured Cabourg, a small port.]

British Hold Wide Area.

Headquarters emphasized that despite loss of forward positions that once extended thru Troarn on the east and Villers-Bocage on the southwest, gains of the last five days have left the British in possession of as much territory as they have held since the invasion.

Several reasons were given to show why the position of the British in the Caen sector was considered "more than satisfactory," despite the fact that no major victory yet had been achieved nor was likely to be for some time.

The first was that the British had progressively made gains despite heavy counter-attacks in which the Germans on both sides of the Orne were able to infiltrate behind the forward forces. But their attacks north of the Odon were broken up by artillery and several strongpoints which had been by-passed in the advance south of Tilly were mopped up. South of the Odon German counter-attacks also had temporary successes but were pinched off and the allied forward troops continued to advance.

Hit Thru Side Door.

The British had tried to reach the high ground in this area by the side

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30.—Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand said here today that the question of post-war Pacific bases for the United States could be settled in one day at a conference table.

Asked at a press conference about disposition of Pacific islands after the war, Fraser replied:

"There are two principles. One is that the occupation of any territory for war time purposes doesn't change its sovereignty. The other is that Australia and New Zealand said, which is not disputed in the United States by any one with whom I have been talking, that we have the right to be heard regarding the disposition of any territory.

"There is no reason for any dispute regarding territories in the Pacific, no reason why it can't be settled amicably. There are really no differences in the Pacific between us [the antipodes and the United States] at all. We can get around the table and settle it in one day."

U. S. Generosity Praised.

In a speech before both houses of Canada's parliament, Fraser praised the assistance given to New Zealand by the United States before America went to war.

"History does not record any more generous action on the part of a nonbelligerent country toward countries that, they knew, were fighting the battles for humanity," he asserted.

The assistance given by Canada to New Zealand in the way of war materials and equipment also was praised by Fraser. He thanked Canada particularly for a mutual aid pact signed today by which Canada will send more materials to New Zealand, and without charge.

Thrill of Living Again Comes to Cherbourg

BY HAROLD DENNY.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CHERBOURG, June 30.—It is a moving experience to watch a dead city come to life again.

Cherbourg, almost deserted when we first entered it three days ago, is beginning to look a little like its old self. It lacks electric lights and streets cars and only part of the water system is functioning, but word has gone out that there is work here and the people are drifting back.

Food Taken by Germans.

In peace time Normandy was probably the best fed region in the world. When the Germans came in they shipped away two-thirds of the region's food stuffs, according to residents, part of it to feed their army and their home folk, part to sell in neutral countries. What was left to the Normans was a minimum of subsistence ration. There was little real hunger, however, for a farming region was always at the city's back door.

The picture of German occupation that one gets from talking with many Frenchmen shows that the Germans were none too happy themselves. They did not belong here and the people made them feel it by ignoring them.

Women Correctly Treated.

From all I could learn, the Germans behaved correctly toward French women with few exceptions. In the beginning there were a few instances of rape and German officers shot the guilty soldiers.

No French girl had to associate with a German unless she wished. French patriots told me. But those girls who did are now outcasts and since we came many have been caught and shorn of their hair by patriotic French women.

No resentment, however, is felt toward French prostitutes who consorted with the Germans.

1,474 AMERICAN TROOPS KILLED; BURY 4,951 JAPS

Half of Island Won; Make New Gains.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, June 30 (AP).—The heaviest American casualties of any ground action to date in the Pacific war—9,752 killed, wounded, and missing—have resulted from a fortnight of bitter fighting on Saipan Island in the Marianas, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The breakdown of the casualties, starting from the invasion June 14 and including June 27, follows:

"Tarawa" for Marines.

Marine assault units suffered the heaviest losses, as they did at Tarawa in the Gilberts last November. In the Gilberts invasion 988 marines were killed in 76 hours of bitter fighting out of a total of 1,026 dead and 2,537 wounded.

Nimitz's announcement, the first on casualties in the Saipan invasion, emphasized the fierce fighting on that island key to the approaches to Japan, China, and the Philippines.

Nimitz also reported heavy enemy casualties. He said 4,951 enemy dead had been buried. No accurate estimate of Japanese casualties was possible, he explained, because the Nipponese carried back a great many of their dead and wounded as they retreated.

Make New Gains.

New gains at the center of the battle line running across Saipan and on the eastern end were reported. American troops had won high ground near the small mountain town of Charan Danshii and thus dominated the enemy-held terrain. Charan Danshii is on the eastern side of the rugged, cave-pocked ridge running north and south the length of Saipan.

The advances were made thru difficult terrain, the bulletin said, and against "intensified enemy resistance." The Yanks thus far have taken about half the island.

Carrier bombers were steadily blasting Japanese strong points in the Tanapag harbor area, northwest of Garapan on the west coast of the island. American warships joined the bombardment.

Strike at Tinian Island.

The same kind of aerial and naval barrages also were laid down on Tinian island, just south of Saipan. Rota island, farther south, again was hammered by carrier planes, without interception.

27 Warships Sunk: Tokyo.

New York, June 30 (AP).—A Tokyo broadcast today ballooned Japanese claims to 27 American warships sunk, probably sunk and damaged in the waters of the Marianas since June 11.

The broadcast, one of a series reporting alleged American losses which have not been in anywise confirmed, said two aircraft carriers, three cruisers, a battleship, a destroyer and a submarine had been sunk, a battleship and five or more aircraft carriers probably sunk, and two battleships, six aircraft carriers and five cruisers damaged.

STAB INTO 'HELL HOLE'

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS ON SAIPAN, June 28 [Delayed]—[By Navy Radio].—Miracles of attack are being performed daily by our fighters in this jagged country against the highly touted Jap "masters of terrain."

Today American troops were pushing inexorably over ground varying in elevation up to hundreds of feet. Cliffs were honeycombed with countless natural caves, most of them concealing Japanese artillery and other heavy weapons. Yet our casualties, as usual, were being held below those of the enemy.

The Japs in this initial assault on their inner ocean defenses are being beaten not only by superior weapons but by more skillful tactics and smarter use of war machinery. The plain fact is that the enemy has excellent weapons and other equipment here plus sufficient man power to conduct an almost impregnable defense on ideal holding terrain. Apparently, however, he is lacking in the vital ingredient to a successful fighting organization—the ability to get the most out of what is at hand.

Visits "Hell Hole."

Many an American military career has been cut short for far less important mistakes than the Jap commanders commit here almost hourly. Obviously these blunders cannot be enumerated here if we expect to continue profiting by them, but the result is that the Japanese are being steadily crowded toward the narrowing northern island tip where annihilation awaits them.

Today I visited the line to the south of the base of Tapotchau peak where the army was cleaning out a large pocket, appropriately named the "hell hole," which had been by-passed by the marines in their earlier headlong advance past the summit. Our line was along the southern lip of a natural amphitheater with sheer walls hundreds of feet high and facing a broad plain sloping downward to the east shore.

Behind the heavy foliage cover and the cliffs were hidden Japanese mountain guns, anti-tank artillery, heavy mortars, and machine guns of every caliber. Every bare spot was apt to have an overhanging flat rock roofing, with a hidden machine gun nest.

Gets Tourist's View.

From a forward mortar observation post I watched the early stages of the reduction of this strong point menacing our right flank. Scrambling thru scrub-brush over ground littered with our own and enemy dead, several of us raced across fields in the face of active enemy machine gun positions to a bower commanding a "tourists' view" of the amphitheater, which is perhaps a half mile wide at the mouth.

Japs killed in the last couple of days were rotting at arm's length on both sides of us, for in a battle burial must wait.

A soldier spoke into a telephone in a monotone to direct the mortar fire which kicked up gray puffs against a far cliff. The observer pulled the fire down 50 yards and a suspected machine gun nest became a sealed episode.

Tanks Ignore Jap Fire.

Far below three of our medium tanks moved northward along a road fringed with the burned out hulks of eight Japanese tanks which had been knocked out in a futile attack two days before. An unseen enemy anti-tank gun below spurted the ground on both sides as the imperturbable monsters crawled into position before the amphitheater and for a half hour plastered targets on the northern cliff.

Later in the day these and other tanks wiped out a Jap company retiring northward from the pocket.

"It was like shooting pigeons on a roost," an American tank crewman said.

Under Fire of Hell.

To our right a large marine unit moved slowly forward down the tortuous road to the coastal plain. Our vehicles slid past them, careening crazily on the one lane hairpin turns, and scuttled across the lowlands swept by automatic weapon and fire from the "hell hole."

Two minutes after we had passed, Japanese artillery fire rained down on the road behind. This was discomforting because we shall have to return by this road. Just ahead, new casualties were being brought back. After a brief look around we again came under fire of machine guns and field pieces. Later we blessed Jap stupidity for our safe passage.

3 TOP-RANKING NAZI OFFICERS REACH ENGLAND

A BRITISH PORT, June 29 (AP).—Three top ranking German officers captured at Cherbourg, Generals Schlieben and Stattler and Adm. Hennecke, were brought to England today in a tank landing ship. They were given every courtesy on the way over, each having his own cabin and an orderly and freedom of the ward room.

Gen. Schlieben, whose hair was cut by an American G. I. barber, apologized because he had no money to pay. He asked what he should do and wound up by signing the soldier's autograph album, with, "Thank you very much for the haircut—Lt. Gen. Von Schlieben."

Adm. Hennecke remarked wryly, "I was a prisoner of the British for two years in the last war. Now I am a prisoner of the Americans. Who am I going to be a prisoner of next? The Japanese perhaps. . . ."

3 JAP DIVISIONS RING CHINA CITY BUT IT FIGHTS ON

Enemy Force Halted in Bypass Thrust.

CHUNGKING, June 30 (AP).—The vital rail junction of Hengyang is encircled by three Japanese divisions but still is in Chinese hands, a Chinese army spokesman said in a press conference today. He reiterated charges that the enemy was using poison gas against the defenders of the city, loss of which would remove the last major Chinese position along the entire length of the Canton-Hankow railway.

[The Tokyo radio broadcast a dispatch of Domei, Japanese agency, dated yesterday "in the suburbs of Hengyang," telling of the fall of the American air base in the area last Monday. This was admitted yesterday in a bulletin of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters.]

Jap Column Halted.

Maj. Gen. C. C. Tseng said that captured field orders showed that a Japanese column which tried to bypass Hengyang on the east had as its objective the railway town of Lelyang, about 35 miles southeast of Hengyang. He said this column was halted north of Anjen, 38 miles southeast of Hengyang.

Tonight's Chinese bulletin said only that "sanguinary fighting" was continuing on all sides of Hengyang thruout yesterday and today, with heavy losses on both sides, and that heavy fighting also raged on both the east and west banks of the Siang river, without any change.

"Moving Only at Night."

Gen. Tseng, predicting intensification of fighting thruout Hunan province, said aerial reconnaissance showed a concentration of about 500 enemy tanks and armored cars near the southeast corner of Tungting lake. In that area yesterday the Chinese reported they had recaptured Yiyang, from whence the high command said it could attack the Japanese flank.

The spokesman praised activities of the United States 14th air forces in support of Chinese ground forces, saying it had inflicted "very great losses" on the Japanese, "who now are moving large bodies of troops only at night."

CHINESE PUSH ON ALONG RAIL LINE TO MANDALAY

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 30—(AP).—Chinese troops southwest of the Chinese-held supply base of Mogaung in north Burma are advancing down the main railway leading to Mandalay, a bulletin of Adm. Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

At Myitkyina, some 35 miles east of Mogaung, Chinese troops have made further advances in the southern sector of that besieged Japanese base, last major enemy stronghold in north Burma.

In eastern India, air and ground action has been undertaken to eliminate Japanese remnants east of the Kohima-Imphal road. Yesterday a bulletin said that all Japanese west of the road had been eliminated.

[The Tokyo radio said that fighting in the Kohima-Imphal sector was stalemated by the advance of the monsoon season and that withdrawal from Kohima-Imphal road positions was "temporary."]

BOMBERS DOWN 8 ZEROES, DROP 63 TONS ON YAP

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 1 [Saturday]—(AP).—Eight Zeroes were shot down and 63 tons of explosives were dropped among parked Japanese planes in the sixth aerial raid since June 22 on Yap Island in the western Carolines, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

In the raid on Wednesday 29 Zeroes battled with the New Guinea based Liberator bombers. The Japs are in a position to assist their beleaguered garrison at Saipan from Yap. On the night of the same day Yap was hit, other Liberators over the western Carolines set fire to a Japanese merchantman near Palau.

On invaded Biak in the Schouten Islands, off north Dutch New Guinea, headquarters reported that 236 more Japanese have been killed, bringing the total enemy killed to 2,878.

SEES NAVY BLAST JAPS' HOMELAND IN NIGHT ATTACK

BY NORMAN BELL.

WITH A NAVY TASK FORCE IN THE NORTH PACIFIC, June 26 [Delayed]—(AP).—Guns of this fog prowling task force blazed in a new attack—second in two weeks—on Japan's Kurile Islands today.

The targets were enemy shipping and the Kurabu-Zaki airdrome at the southern end of Paramushiro Island.

The island couldn't be seen by the unaided eyes in the black, dripping night and the 30 minute bombardment was by instrument. But the land, now thawed out and snow-free, could be smelled. The odor, borne on the wind as the task force moved in to bombard, was strong and sour—like the stench of a muddy inlet at low tide. It was the first time I had smelled Japan.

I took shelter on this cruiser division's flagship's sky control platform. Sailors in exposed positions bundled under steel helmets into the warmth of their clothing.

Destroyer Target "Dies."

A force of destroyers under Capt. Hilyer F. Gearing, was the first to fire shortly before the bombardment hour. It engaged enemy surface vessels half way up the eastern coast toward Suribachi. Gun flashes of tracer shells streaked the night. A destroyer's target was reported "dead in the water," presumably sinking.

Then the heavier guns of the main force opened their bombardment. It developed into a wild flame spurting din.

We braced ourselves and closed our eyes each time the firing buzzer was heard and the "stand by" warning was passed. The guns crashed and we opened our eyes as the red blaze of firing faded to watch each salvos' tracers for a brief moment before they vanished in the fog.

Run Over Fishing Fleet.

The bombardment hardly finished when the warning came of small craft—"many of them"—on all sides. The task force was running right over a fishing fleet.

It must have been a terrifying experience for the Japanese fishermen.

They have been told the spirits of their soldiers killed on Attu haunt the North Pacific.

Now they saw other ghosts, immense and awful, moving upon them out of the fog—roaring, blazing and streaking the sea with weird, phosphorescent waves.

The frightened fishermen shut off the motors of their boats, probably large Sampan type craft with Diesel engines, and tried to drive unobserved thru the task force. The larger ships left the hunting job to destroyers. The swift, deadly "cans" split the night again and again with their guns.

No Fishing for Some Time.

The fishing boats were too small to see unless very close, and how many were sunk by instrument-directed gunnery was unknown. But Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith, in congratulating his men, said there probably would be no fishing off Paramushiro for some time.

There was some return fire from ships and shore. But the strong task force simply brushed aside the opposition of torpedo boats or other small war vessels and vanished into the fog. No ship of the force was damaged.

It coincided with continued "Empire Express" missions by Aleutian based navy Ventura and army Liberator bombers against the Kurile chain, which forms the northern claw of Japan's homeland.

The Venturas and Liberators struck the northern Kuriles June 24 and the Venturas were out again today.

They bombed northern Paramushiro, flying in above the fog shortly after the warships had slipped in under the wet mist.

Charles Poletti, AMG [allied military government] commissioner for Rome, announced today formation of an all-Italian committee to restore the property and possessions of persecuted Jews and anti-Fascists in the Rome area. Super Fort Crews Toil Early and Late to Beat India's Heat

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A SUPER FORTRESS BASE SOMEWHERE IN INDIA, June 28 [Delayed].—The hundreds of air force officers and men who manned the big B-29 Fortresses in the midnight raid on the Imperial Iron and Steel works at Yawata, Japan, June 15, now are relaxing in bases such as this while they wait for word as to what their next target will be.

The censors, of course, forbid any mention as to the location of this base, but the Super Fortress flight crews of this group agree unanimously that it is located at absolutely the hottest place in India, which they insist in turn is the hottest country in the world. Therefore, most of their energies, when not engaged in readying their airplanes, are directed at thwarting the unpleasantness of the steaming pre-monsoon weather. And they have done pretty well.

Reveille at 5:15.

One way to beat the heat is to work only in the early mornings and late afternoons. At exactly 5:15 a. m., a good 45 minutes after daybreak, the group bugler staggers sleepily into the operations hut and blows reveille into the microphone. A big amplifying system hurls the call from loud speakers thruout the camp. The bugle itself is a battered relic bought in China for 1,000 Chinese dollars [about five United States dollars at black market rate] by Lt. Col. Alfred Kalberer, North Hollywood, Cal., the group commander.

By 6:30 breakfast is over and officers and men are on the flight line working on the planes. Quitting time comes at 11:30 and is followed by lunch and a siesta until 3 p. m. Then reveille sounds again and the work goes on until 6:30 or 7. This way the men take it easy under the thatched roofs of their mud and bamboo barracks during the hours when the sun burns down like a blow torch.

Another trick the crews learned is never to sleep in their rooms if they can find space for their cots on the porches or under trees. The heavy thatched roofs, altho they ward off the sun, also seem to store up vast quantities of heat and nightly the room becomes hotter and hotter until even breathing is a chore. Every night the porches of the quarters and the grassless clay expanses around them are covered with cots holding snoring crewmen.

A contributing factor to this move into the open is that small cobras and other snakes occasionally make their homes in thatched roofs. The barracks in which I live had a cobra about three feet long in the roof for several weeks. Several times it was seen high in the bamboo cross pieces or sliding over a rafter. The officer occupants christened it Hortense and were very respectful toward it, but were glad when it eventually disappeared.

One of the officers here is Maj. Edward Perry, 23, Charleston, Ill., a group navigator. Several other Illinoisans are in barracks close by. They include Lt. James Bell, Catlin, Ill., a bombardier; Lt. Jack Smith, Tuscola, Ill., bombardier, and Capt. John Wolfe, Evanston, Ill., whose uncle, Clayton F. Smith, is president of the Cook county board. Wolfe is assistant operations officer. Capt. Francis Marion, Normal, Ill., is a navigator and bombardier, and Lt. Clarence Miller, Milwaukee, Wis., is a navigator.

The latest weather defeating project of the group is a swimming pool. A site directly behind the officer club was selected and big bulldozers now are ripping up the earth. With concrete left over from the runway construction and piping left over from the camp drainage system, the group engineers hope to have the pool operating within a month or so.

Fortress Their Recreation.

The evenings at this base are quite different than at other bomber and fighter bases I have visited. For one thing, there is the surprising absence of high stake poker games which always have been much in evidence at other camps. The favorite recreation here seems to be to sprawl out in comfortable porch chairs after dinner and settle down to the favorite topic of discussion—the Super Fortress.

The outsider learns, as he listens to the talk, that the B-29 is a tremendously complex war machine and that these men are only beginning to learn all that there is to know about maintaining and flying it. But the outsider also comes to realize that these eager young men are learning more and more about their planes every day, knowledge which will make them even more deadly and efficient the next time they strike the Japanese.

WE CAN USE WEAPONS, SO BUY BONDS FOR ME, YANK TELLS MOTHER

"I hear you are having another bond drive," writes Lt. R. W. Patterson, a navigator-bombardier in England, to his mother, Mrs. William H. Riddle II., of 1444 Marion av., Highland Park.

"Well, we can use everything that shoves or shoots. Better buy $200 worth of bonds for me. I guess if it's worth fighting for, it's worth investing in."

Thus Lt. Patterson closed a letter in which he described a bomb run over France on D-day and the flight over the channel to the target.

"The clouds lifted like magic and suddenly there was the stunning glimpse below," he wrote. "Thousands of battleships, cargoes, transports, landing ships, launches, motorboats. No movie will ever be like that. All the ships were firing like mad at shore installations. An inferno gone crazy."

HOSPITAL PLANE ALWAYS WAITING TO PICK UP YANKS

Noon Casualties in British Beds by Sundown.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 30.—American soldiers wounded in battle in Normandy arrive at base hospitals in England within a few hours after becoming casualties, thanks to the 9th air force troopcarrier evacuation units.

Lt. C. M. Evenson.

Operating from an air field hacked out four days after the invasion, transport planes fly a ferry service in such numbers that a plane is always waiting to bring the wounded away. Men hurt at noon find themselves between clean sheets in England by sunset.

Capt. E. W. Douglas of Portland, Ore., and Capt. W. B. Oliver of Belvidere, Ill., direct the medical corps in charge of putting the wounded aboard planes.

From a collecting station near the battlefield the wounded are brought to a holding station, where the lightly and the seriously wounded are separated. The seriously wounded ones are operated on or otherwise treated until fit to travel. These units carry on in orchards or fields, using tents with facilities to care for 600 patients. This correspondent saw some of the tents.

Some Go Back in Action.

Another hospital unit holds lightly wounded men for 10 days to see if they can be put in shape to return to battle.

The medical officer in charge of coördinating the evacuation of the wounded by sea and air is Maj. H. C. Mack of Detroit, Mich., whose tent hospital usually is empty by sundown of each day, the wounded having been moved.

Each transport plane, which carries munitions or supplies on inbound trips has an army nurse and a male surgical technician, as well as a flying crew. Nurse Lt. Clemetta M. Evenson, 5049 N. Damen av., Chicago, in one of the planes on the Normandy beachhead had as her only patient a French dog that had been hurt. There were no wounded for her plane and it came back empty. Other nurses engaged in evacuation work were Lt. Florence Fintak of Milwaukee, Wis., and Lt. Blanche V. Garwood of Ludington, Mich. The plane on which this correspondent returned carried 15 walking cases, altho it had room for 24 to 28.

Ill, He Kills "About Five."

One of those aboard was Pvt. Arthur V. Sticken of Lockport, Ill. He was suffering from stomach ulcers. He had them when he went to invade France but kept quiet about them because he wanted to get in the scrap. He said he had killed "about five" Germans. The driver of a cargo carrier, he shot two with a machine gun on the vehicle.

Pvt. Mitchell H. Goldenstein, 3230 Eastwood av., Chicago, landed on D-day as a radio operator for a naval shellfire control party that had been attached to the Rangers. The jeep carrying his radio equipment, however, bogged down in the surf, was destroyed by German 88s, and he didn't do any fire control work.

Goldenstein, who took third award as a baritone in the 1935 West Side audition for the Chicago Tribune Music Festival, was returning to England because of a recurrence of a minor illness he had had while on duty in the Mediterranean theater.

The nurse aboard the plane was Lt. Dorothy Brinjley of Wheeling, W. Va. The surgical technician was Sgt. Italy Serchia, 1109 S. Racine av., Chicago.

GLENVIEW GETS U. S. COMMAND OF AIR TRAINING

Headquarters of the naval air primary training command for the entire country were established yesterday at the Glenview Naval Air station, with the arrival of Rear Adm. Osborne B. Hardison, commanding officer, and a staff of 70 officers from Fairfax field, Kansas City, Kas.

The command was transferred because primary air training is no longer being carried on at Kansas City, and because it was desired to base the headquarters where such training still continues. The command includes 130 units thruout the country.

Adm. Hardison is a battle seasoned veteran of the South Pacific where he commanded the aircraft carrier Enterprise. He is 51, a native of Wadesboro, N. C., and a graduate of Annapolis. His wife, Ruth, and sons, Osborne Jr. and William G. M. Hardison, are expected to arrive in a few days. With the admiral is his chief of staff, Capt. Edward P. Moore.

Moses Lake, Wash., June 30 (AP).—Second Lt. Robert C. Snow, Bellwood, Ill., son of Mrs. Helen E. Snow, was killed today when a fighter plane crashed 8 miles southeast of this army air base.

Pueblo, Colo., June 30 (AP).—Col. Vernon C. Smith of the Pubelo army air base said tonight that all 10 men aboard a Liberator bomber which crashed yesterday 55 miles east of Trinidad are dead. He said the dead included: 2d Lt. Guy H. Conger, son of Mrs. Lavere Conger, Sac City, Ia.; 2d Lt. Theodore J. Skrypiec, son of Mrs. Stella Skrypiec, Wyandotte, Mich.; Corp. Eugene B. door—that is, Villers-Bocage,—but were backed off by the best troops Marshal Rommel could throw against them. The present salient is regarded as reaching the same objectives thru the front door.

Yanks Advance Line.

Headquarters also revealed activity on the American front east of St. Lo, where the Yank line was advanced about 400 yards in a straightening operation. Arrival of American troops at the Carentan sector of the front also was disclosed.

[The Berlin radio said allied troop concentrations were "stupendous" north of St. Lo and south of Carentan in the shallowest sector of the Normandy beachhead, and declared fresh attacks were expected hourly.]

On the American flank to the west, Maj. Gen. J. Lawton [Lightning Joe] Collins slowed down the pace of his advance to conserve his troops methodically mopping up the last German resistance on Cap de la Hague.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 30 (AP).—Allied war bulletin No. 50 issued tonight said:

"Allied forces driving their salient toward the Orne river in the Caen sector have compelled the enemy to throw in strong armored reserves in an effort to halt our advance.

"In spite of repeated counter-attacks by these formations our positions not only have been held but improved.

"Farther west ground has been gained near St. Jean de Daye.

"Resistance in the Cap de la Hague area of the Cherbourg peninsula has continued.

"The weather severely restricted air operations between midnight and midmorning, but improving conditions over the battle area and southward permitted allied forces to complete some 1,000 sorties by early afternoon.

"Flying thru clouds or under low ceilings small forces of medium bombers before dawn attacked the main thorofares in use by the enemy in the Villers-Bocage area.

"From the first light fighter-bombers and fighters based both in Britain and Normandy harassed enemy movements in the area bounded by Dreux, Chartres, Alencon and Argentan, and carried out armed reconnaissance as far south as Tours.

"Small forces of medium bombers attacked road and rail junctions between Mezidon and Falaise. Fighter bombers hit large warehouses at Arville, east of Le Mans, and an important bridge at Beaugency, as well as rail lines and machine gun emplacements in the Orleans area.

"One of our fighters is missing."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

The German high command Friday war bulletin from a Berlin broadcast recorded in New York by the Associated Press:

"In Normandy the enemy continued his enormous efforts to cut off the town of Caen from supplies and communications, and take it from the southwest. The enemy in fierce fighting at first enlarged the breach with the employment of strong artillery and air formations, and then, however, was hit in the flank in the course of a strong German counter-thrust. The enemy lost a large part of the ground gained. Numerous enemy tanks were destroyed. The battle is still raging.

"Enemy thrusts east of the Orne and southwest of Tilly; supported by strong artillery forces, were foiled. North American troops who had infiltrated northeast of St. Lo were repulsed in a counter-thrust. The enemy has now started a large scale attack also against our fighting groups on the northwestern tip of the Cotentin peninsula in the Cherbourg area. The onslaught of numerically far superior enemy forces collapsed. More than 900 enemy tanks were destroyed on the invasion front since June 6."

Reported Killed

[Acme Telephoto.]
Col. Gen. Friedrich Dollmann.

LONDON, June 30 (AP).—Col. Gen. Friedrich Dollmann, commander of the German 7th army and defender of the middle section of the "Atlantic wall," has been killed in action in France, the Berlin radio announced today. He was the highest ranking general of eight thus far killed or captured in the fighting in Normandy.

Dollmann, 62, died Tuesday, it was announced. The R. A. F. that day raided a farmhouse near St. Sauner-Lendelin which had been pointed out as a German corps headquarters.

He was reputed to be one of Germany's greatest artillery specialists and was known as a high powered, crafty leader who gained fame early in this war in the first battle for France.

GERMAN LOSSES IN FRANCE PUT AT 7 FULL DIVISIONS

Yankees Kill 10,000; Capture 38,289.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN NORMANDY, June 30.—In the 24 days of fighting since the invasion, American soldiers have killed, wounded or captured the equivalent of six full German divisions, according to a conservative military estimate today. Figuring in the German losses along the British sector, the total approaches seven divisions.

Yanks Capture 38,289.

With the large and constantly increasing haul from the fortress of Cherbourg the total of prisoners taken in the American sector reached 38,289 at midnight last night. The final figure, according to the same staff officer, probably will exceed 40,000 when the Cap de la Hague area is cleared out. While the British have not yet released official figures, it is believed that that their bag of prisoners also runs into the thousands.

To date the Americans have buried 4,171 Germans and it is estimated that the Germans have buried at least another 5,000. Based on the usual ratio of dead to wounded, it was estimated that the Germans have had at least 12,000 soldiers wounded, and the figure actually may run much higher.

Allied Losses Light.

Adding all these figures gives more than six German divisions, an enemy division now running around 10,000 at full strength. The German divisions destroyed were named as the 352d, 709th, 77th, 91st, and 243d.

In contrast, the officer said allied losses have been relatively light.

500 U. S. PLANES RIP 3 AIR FIELDS, NAZI RAIL LINES

LONDON, July 1 [Saturday]—(AP).—Allied heavy and medium bombers struck at German installations in a wide arc around the Normandy battle zone all day yesterday, flying 3,000 sorties from dawn to dusk. They loosed most of their explosives on targets whose destruction would halt the movement of Nazi reënforcements.

The weather, which limited air activity over the fighting front all week, improved enough to permit stepping up the offensive.

German fighters offered only spotty resistance, but 21 were downed by the allied pilots—17 by the R. A. F. flyers who operated from bases in Normandy.

An indication that allied bombers were slashing deeper into the continent by night came from the German radio. A program was interrupted at 12:30 a. m. [5:30 p. m. Friday, Chicago war time] and an announcer said allied planes were approaching northwest and western Germany.

500 U. S. Planes Attack.

American Liberators and Flying Fortresses, 250 strong, escorted by a like number of Mustang fighters, roared thru clouds to smash 750 tons of bombs against three air fields in northern France and one in Belgium, in their campaign to drive the German air force even farther away from the battle area. Not a German fighter was met. All the planes returned safely.

The R. A. F. in the forenoon sent Lancaster bombers to plaster the launching ramps for Nazi rocket bombs, as the robot planes were hurled thruout the day at southern England, opening the third week of these attacks. None of the Lancasters was lost, but one escorting Spitfire failed to return.

In their second mission of the day the R. A. F. turned to tactical support of ground units driving west of Caen, and then, late in the evening still another formation of British heavies attacked a large concentration of German armor in the Villers-Bocage area on the west flank of the Caen salient.

Report Vienna Hit Again.

The German radio reported that Italian based allied planes bombed the vicinity of Vienna and Zagreb, Yugoslavia. R. A. F. Wellingtons, Halifaxes, and Liberators also from Italian bases hit an air field at Feuersbrunn, 30 miles northwest of the Austrian capital, last night.

Medium bombers and fighter-bombers of the allied expeditionary air force ranged over a wide area behind the fighting front, ripping railroads in a drive to block movement of reinforcements for Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's armies in Normandy.

Waves of these planes still were shuttling across the channel in the evening, and pilots of some of them saw R. A. F. fighters shooting down Nazi robot bombs near the southern England coast.

Algiers French Sentence Army Chiefs for Treason

ALGIERS, June 30—(AP).—A military tribunal today convicted Gen. Pierre Blanc and Col. Justin Magnin of treason on charges of recruiting North African Frenchmen for German armies in Russia before November, 1942. Magnin was sentenced to death, Blanc to 20 years. The purge trial opened yesterday.

GERMANS FLEE FROM BLOWS OF CLARK'S ARMOR

Yanks 20 Miles from Livorno; British Gain.

Despairing of fighting even an effective delaying action, the Germans broke off contact along highway 1, skirting the west coast, and fled before the wall of Yank armor, which drove within less than 20 miles of Livorno [Leghorn] and within 27 miles of Pisa, anchor of the enemy's Gothic line defending the valley of the Po.

Nazi forces which had fought bitterly for a week in the rough country inland also appeared to be breaking under the blows of American, French, and British troops.

Siena's Fall Seems Near.

The fall of Siena, 31 miles below Florence, was believed imminent. American armor and infantry punched to within seven miles of the city from the southwest and threw a tank column almost due west of its outskirts, threatening to flank any Germans who might try to make a house to house fight. French colonials were only 10 miles from the city on the southeast.

Farther inland, the British 8th army, ploughing forward after a fortnight of yard-by-yard progress up the shores of Lake Trasimeno, swept thru numerous villages and captured the picturesque town of Castiglione del Lago on the lake's west bank. British patrols thrust to the vicinity of Magione, on the east bank, and reached the Chiascio river above Perugia.

The new breakthru appeared to be paving the way for the fastest allied advance since Field Marshal Albert Kesselring succeeded in checking the disorganized flight of his forces far above Rome. It virtually guaranteed that the allies would be smashing at the Gothic line long before the summer is out.

Motor Convoys Blasted.

Reserves of men and weapons were being wiped out before they could be thrown into the fight. Allied light and fighter-bombers attacked a string of supply trains yesterday between Forli and Rimini and destroyed most of a shipment of about 500 motor vehicles, numerous tanks and supplies of gasoline. At least 54 railway cars were destroyed and 90 damaged.

American troops pounding up the west coast were more than 225 airline miles from the points along the Garigliano river where they jumped off in the present offensive seven weeks ago. About the only sound of battle heard by Lt. Gen. Clark's men as they raced toward Livorno yesterday was the explosions as Nazis demolished bridges and other structures.

Livorno Major Port.

In a field ceremony yesterday Gen. Charles de Gaulle decorated Gen. Clark and four other American officers and several French officers with various degrees of the Legion of Honor.

[The German war bulletin broadcast yesterday said: "Fighting is raging on the Italian front on the coast of Liguria and in the sector southwest and south of Siena. The enemy, supported by strong tank formations and by concentrated artillery formations, launched nonstop attacks all day long, gaining but little ground. The enemy continued his attempts to break thru on both sides of Lake Trasimeno, and as a result of the severe losses suffered on previous days was forced to regroup his formations. Toward evening he resumed his attacks, which are still being continued."]

REVEAL SINKING OF LINER ELENA BY NAZI PLANES

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—Loss of the former Grace liner Santa Elena while on troop carrying service in the Mediterranean, was disclosed today by the war shipping administration in connection with the award of a citation to a merchant marine skipper who saved 1,675 of the troop ship's survivors.

Another sinking in the Caribbean was announced by the navy, that of a small Panamanian vessel, which was torpedoed early this month.

[Dispatches from San Juan, Porto Rico, said two are known dead, 23 are missing, and nine were injured of the 47 aboard.]

Capt. E. R. Johanson of the S. S. Monterey is being cited for his courageous command of rescue operations after the Elena sinking.

The rescue was disclosed last February, but WSA at that time withheld the name of the ship which succumbed to an attack by Nazi torpedo planes. Only four persons were lost.

CHICAGO BOY'S AIR GROUP ENDS 300TH MISSION

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 30.—One of the most remarkable flying combat records in any war theater has been compiled by a B-26 Marauder group which yesterday completed its 300th mission with an assault on an ammunition depot at La Spezia.

Second Lt. Arthur A. Wallerstedt, 6548 S. Halsted st., Chicago, has participated in 68 of these missions, which is more than any other present member of the unit. Wallerstedt enlisted in the air force as a gunner and later was commissioned as a bombardier.

Baptism at Bizerte.

The unit flew its first mission when a skeleton formation of six Marauders bombed Bizerte harbor on Dec. 30, 1942. In the intervening 18 months, the group has flown more than 27,000 combat hours and more than 4 million miles. It has dropped almost 10,000 tons of bombs and destroyed 90 enemy aircraft in battle and 140 on the ground, in addition to damaging 17 in the air and 37 on the ground. On sea sweeps during the African campaign and recently over Livorno [Leghorn] harbor, the group sank two ships and damaged four.

Individual awards to group members number 974, including one distinguished service cross and 26 distinguished flying crosses. The group has been commended particularly for its pinpoint bombing attacks in close support of ground forces and for its attacks on targets at Cassino and Florence.

Two Distinguished Planes.

Among the veteran planes in the group have been Coughin' Coffin and Jersey Bouncer. The former was taken from a salvage dump after more than 50 missions, repaired and flown to the United States for a bond selling tour. The Jersey Bouncer still is banging away after 99 missions.

The group is now commanded by Col. Donald L. Gilbert, Redwood City, Cal. He has been awarded the distinguished flying cross, the silver star, the air medal, the Purple Heart, and the French croix de guerre.

YANK MAGIC AT CHERBOURG: BEEFSTEAKS!

WITH THE AMERICAN 9TH DIVISION OUTSIDE CHERBOURG, June 28 [Delayed]—(AP).—Infantrymen of this company of the 9th division had their first quiet night's rest last night since they landed in France on D plus 3 day.

"I sure would like broiled steaks like I used to make on the beaches," said Sgt. Robert Kennedy of Louisiana. "You are going to get steaks until you can't eat any more," said Capt. Preselone Gordon, McGee, Mo., as he uncovered five halves of beef and two halves of pork on a jeep. "We got those from the Germans today. Tonight you eat steak—for breakfast you get pork."

STAR AWARDED POSTHUMOUSLY TO CHICAGO MAN

Corp. Frank Gianesin

The silver star was awarded posthumously to Corp. Frank Gianesin, son of Mrs. Frances M. Gianesin, 913 S. Winchester av., for gallantry in action, it was announced yesterday by the war department. Corp. Gianesin was maintaining the telephone line from a forward observation post to a gun position on an Italian battlefield. Despite the proximity of the enemy who was hurling hand grenades and shelling the area with mortar and artillery fire, Corp. Gianesin kept communications open and remained at his post until he was killed.

TELL HOW COLLISION SANK DESTROYER IN ONLY 25 SECONDS

HALIFAX, N. S., June 30 (AP).—The United States destroyer Ingraham, which went down as the result of a collision in a fog near the Canadian coast in 1942, sank in 25 seconds and only a handful of more than 200 men aboard the new craft survived. Censorship today permitted publication of this information. The sinking was announced in Washington on Aug. 27, 1942.

Torn by explosions from her munitions, the 1,600 ton Ingraham went down in one of the swiftest sinkings in maritime records. The collision occurred not far off Halifax as the Ingraham was escorting a convoy.

She was launched on Feb. 15, 1941, at Charleston, S. C., as the second United States warship to bear that name. A successor was launched at Kearny, N. J., last January.

The praise was given the sheriff and his aid in a memorandum signed by Thomas Milner, 8149 Princeton av., foreman of the grand jury, and all the other jury members. The jury members reported that in their month of duty they had considered 216 cases, had voted indictments in 123 cases, no bills in 36 cases, and passed the remaining cases onto the July grand jury.

U. S. SNAPS LAST TIE WITH FINNS OVER NAZI PACT

Hull Denounces Military Deal with Germany.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The United States broke off diplomatic relations with Finland today on the grounds that Finland is so dominated by Germany as to make the continuance of relations impossible.

The rupture, which had been predicted since the pact was disclosed three days ago between the Finns and the Germans on military assistance, was announced by the state department this morning. A note signed by Secretary Hull was delivered to Alexander Thesleff, the Finnish charge d'affaires, who was summoned to the state department to receive it.

The note said that Edmund Gullion, American charge d'affaires in Helsinki, had been instructed to ask for passports for himself and members of his staff. One of his clerks is Eric G. Lindahl of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Thesleff Prepares to Leave.

Thesleff, the Finnish representative here, who remained behind after Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope and his three councilors were asked on June 16 to leave the country, this afternoon was preparing to close the legation and leave the country, too. There apparently is no thought of following up the break with a declaration of war.

The treasury today declared Finland to be "enemy territory" and decreed that no business, financial or commercial communication, or transaction with the Finnish government, its diplomatic representatives, or persons in Finland may be conducted without a special treasury license.

Reports from Moscow said that the break caused "universal joy" in the soviet union. It was looked on as a blow that may cause the Finns to overthrow their present pro-German government.

A break between Finland and the United States has been threatened several times in the last two years, but it has been avoided in the hope that the 25 year old Finnish republic might be persuaded to cancel its pact with Germany.

Hull Assails Alliance.

This hope apparently was abandoned three days ago when the Finnish government announced that it had reached a complete understanding with the Hitler government following a visit of Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop to Helsinki.

In his note to the Finnish charge d'affaires, Secretary Hull asserted that the Finns have entered into a hard and fast military partnership with the Germans for the purpose of fighting the allies of the United States.

Operations in Finland have a direct bearing on the success of the allied war effort, Hull said, implying that the American severance of relations is to assist soviet Russia, which still maintains relations with Japan, with which the United States is at war.

Finland Termed Puppet.

The American note begins by citing the bulletin of the Finnish government of June 27 disclosing its agreement with Germany. The note concludes:

"This action was taken without recourse to the established diplomatic procedure of Finland and the consequences must rest solely on the Finnish government. The American government is not unaware of the fact that the infiltration of German troops into Finland with the consent of the Finnish government and the German infiltration into the councils of the Finnish government had deprived Finland of liberty of action and had reduced the government of the republic of Finland to the position of a puppet Nazi Germany. . . .

"The government of the United States must take into account the fact that at this decisive stage in the combined operations of the military, naval, and air forces of the United States and the other united nations, the Finnish operations have a direct bearing on the success of the allied effort. Notwithstanding the esteem in which the American people have held the people of Finland, further relations between the government of the United States and the government of Finland are impossible."

Gullion Delivers Note.

STOCKHOLM, June 30 (AP).—Edmund Gullion, United States charge d'affairs, delivered the American note advising the Finnish government of a break in relations to Foreign Minister Ramsay in Helsinki today.

In a telephone conversation with the Associated Press in Stockholm Gullion said he and his staff of five, together with their families, expected to leave Finland for Sweden next Tuesday.

This afternoon the Social Democratic party issued an appeal urging the Finnish people to back the government and affirming that Social Democratic ministers would not withdraw from the cabinet.

3 FLYERS CLIMB OUT OF CANYON SAFE AND WELL

Grand Canyon, Ariz., June 30 (AP).—Nine days after they floated by emergency parachute into the depths of the Grand canyon, three army airmen today clambered back safe and well out of the gorge.

They were guided to safety by two veteran climbers who descended to the ninth rim thru a deep crevasse sighted from the air. Three other rescue parties were frustrated by the rushing waters of the Colorado river and the rock walls of the canyon.

Reds Advance Along Central Front

RUSSIANS GAIN ALL ALONG LINE; NEARING MINSK

LONDON, June 30 (AP).—Red army troops smashed ahead along the entire length of the central front today. They drove across the old Polish border in the north to Disna, about 30 miles west of Polotsk. They also slashed their way into the streets of Borisov, 45 miles northeast of Minsk, on the main highway and railway from Orsha, the Moscow war bulletin said tonight. Fierce fighting was said to be raging in Borisov.

On the Berezina river, Borisov is the last important station before the white Russian capital of Minsk, at the center of an fmprovised German line.

Developing their success northwest and west of the fallen bastion of Bobruisk, the Russians captured district centers of a Minsk region town and a large railway station.

In Finland, the bulletin added, Red troops overcame resistance and engineering obstacles on forest roads and lake defiles in the region between Lakes Ladoga and Onezhskoe [Onega], and swept thru more than 40 populated places. Gains north and northwest of Viipuri also were reported.

Reports 132,000 Nazis Slain.

In a special announcement preceding its bulletin Moscow reported the killing of 80,000 Germans on the two White Russian fronts, bringing to 132,000 the number announced as killed since June 23. Moscow said 50,000 were slain and 23,000 taken prisoner on the first White Russian front, and 30,000 killed and 3,250 taken captive on the second White Russian sector between June 24 and 29.

Previously the Red army had announced the killing of 32,000 on the third White Russian front and 20,000 on the first Baltic front between June 23 and 27. These two sectors yielded 20,000 and 5,000 prisoners respectively, Moscow said.

The announcement said the Germans during the week had lost 941 tanks and self-propelled guns, 5,149 guns of various caliber, 3,776 mortars, 16,054 machine guns, and 29,662 trucks.

River Forced on Wide Front.

In the Minsk area Red army troops forced the river Berezina on a wide front north of Borisov and advanced about 19 miles west of the river. In at least one sector they were said to be less than 30 miles from Minsk.

A supplemental bulletin issued by Moscow late tonight said the Germans had been reenforced but were being driven back rapidly toward Minsk.

Fifteen German counter-attacks 45 miles north of Borisov were reported repulsed.

West of Mogilev, Russian troops forced the river Drut and captured more than 80 populated places. German counter-attacks were reported repulsed.

Troops of Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's 1st Baltic army took Disna.

On the south, Marshal Konstantin. K. Rokossovky's 1st White Russian army captured the railhead of Slutsk and took more than 200 other populated places, including a number of railway stations, which cleared the entire line all the way back to its junction with the railroad between Minsk and Bobruisk.

Deep in Pripyat Marshes.

The drive even penetrated into the heart of the Pripyat [Pripet] marshes at the south, capturing Petrikov, a district center of the Polessye region.

The supplemental Russian report tonight said seven enemy transports totaling 40,000 tons, one tanker and five smaller vessels had been sunk in attacks on a convoy en route to Petsamo, Finland, and Kirkenes, Norway.

[The German war bulletin, broadcast by Berlin, said: "Fierce fighting is still raging in the central part of the eastern front. The advance of enemy spearheads between Slutsk and Bobruisk was checked at some points. Fierce fighting developed near Borisov and southwest Polotsk. All soviet thrusts southeast of Polotsk collapsed yesterday."]

ESCORT VESSEL CAN BE SEEN AT TRIBUNE SHOW

ELGIN WATCH DAY.

Today is Elgin National Watch day at the War Products exhibit, dedicated to the workers of the Elgin National Watch company for their contribution to the war.

Visitors at the War Products exhibit in Tribune Square have a special treat in store today when they may see one of the navy's brand new semi-battle wagons, a destroyer escort 708, which has just been completed by the Defoe Shipbuilding company of Bay City, Mich. The sleek, trim vessel will be moored at the dock alongside the exhibit until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

The United States treasury department is sponsor of the show in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and the armaments manufacturers. The exhibit will continue daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. thru July 9.

Use "Roll Over" Method.

Virtually the same size and carrying the same armament as a destroyer but designed primarily for convoy duty, the ship is 307 feet long. It is the largest vessel ever to have been built by Defoe's famous "roll over" or upside down treatment.

The method was devised by Harry J. Defoe, founder of the company. Construction of the hulls is started upside down on a flat deck, thereby reducing production costs, conserving space and cutting man hours.

When the hull is completed the roll over process, powered by a single locomotive crane, is accomplished in five minutes. The vessel it fitted to the last word in armaments and carries a sizable complement of officers and men.

He's Former Teacher.

Defoe, a former Michigan school teacher, started his first boat building venture 45 years ago with a kit of carpenter tools and $100, "saved from seven years of teaching."

Visitors at the exhibit will not be allowed to board the vessel but may view it from Tribune Square.

The navy pier band will play from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. The concert will be broadcast by WMAQ-N.

In World War I he was a first lieutenant in the infantry in France and Germany. His original enlistment was in February, 1904, when he was living in Fitchburg, Mass. He served the last four years at Fort Sheridan. He was the guest of honor at a dinner given by his company Tuesday night. He will make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Watson, at 7310 Perry av.

100 WOMEN LEAVE BAKERY AFTER A BRIEF SITDOWN

More than 100 day shift women workers at the National Biscuit company plant, 2340 Polk st., conducted a brief sitdown strike yesterday afternoon reportedly in protest against a higher wage rate of 2 cents an hour being paid one of the workers. The baking firm is engaged in the manufacture of K rations and cookies and crackers for service men. The strike began in the icing department. The strikers consented to leave the building at the termination of their shift when company officials explained it was necessary to obtain a war labor board order before wages could be raised. The woman receiving the higher wage, the company explained, was formerly a supervisor who had been returned to the work tables because of a shortage of material and labor.

F. D. R. OUTLINES TWO TASKS FOR 'FREE' FILIPINOS

Friends of Japs Must Go, He Says.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Filipinos who have collaborated with the Japanese will be removed from authority and influence over the economic and political life of the Philippines as the first step in granting independence to the islands, President Roosevelt asserted today.

Mr. Roosevelt announced the government's plans for establishing Philippine independence when he signed two congressional joint resolutions affecting the islands.

One lays down the policy for granting independence and provides for American acquisition of air and land bases in the islands, in addition to the present naval bases and fueling stations. The other establishes a joint Filipino-American commission for economic and financial rehabilitation.

Freedom After Japs Leave.

The independence measure provides that instead of waiting for the original independence date, July 4, 1946, independence shall be granted as soon as practicable after the Japanese are driven out.

Mr. Roosevelt said that civil government under constitutional officers will be set up as soon as possible.

The officers will take emergency measures to alleviate the physical and economic hardships of the Philippine people and prepare them for independence. This will include two tasks of great importance, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Those who have collaborated with the enemy must be removed from authority and influence over the political and economic life of the country; and the democratic form of government guaranteed by the constitution of the Philippines must be restored for the benefit of the people of the islands."

U. S. Bases "Welcomed."

The President said the Philippine authorities welcome the establishment of the American air bases, for the mutual protection of the islands and the United States, and that they will coöperate in the establishment and maintenance of the bases.

The joint commission will be known as the Philippine rehabilitation commission. It will be composed of nine American members and nine from the Philippines.

The American members will be three senators appointed by the president of the senate, three representatives appointed by the speaker of the house, and three appointees of the President. The appointments are to be made within 15 days.

Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippines, gave his approval to the independence program in a message from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he has been in poor health for some time.

CHERBOURG FALL HAILED BY STALIN IN NOTE TO F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt today made public a message from Premier Stalin of Russia congratulating American and British troops for their victory at Cherbourg. The message follows:

"My warm congratulations go to you on the liberation of Cherbourg from the German usurpers. The valiant American and British troops are greeted by me on the occasion of their brilliant success."

SHRINERS MARCH IN LOOP JULY 10 TO AID WAR LOAN

Oriental pageantry will be seen on downtown State st. the night of Monday, July 10, when the Medinah Temple Shriners will march in a State st. parade. The Shriners will coöperate with State st. business men in Chicago and Cook county's campaign to fulfill a war bond quota of $894,014,000.

Another oriental demonstration, called the "Triple 7," will be staged on July 7 by the Chinese-American community at 22d st. and Wentworth av., in Chinatown, in the interest of the 5th war loan drive.

Mrs. Kelly Gets Invitation.

Three attractive Chinese girls, Misses Nancy Wong, Blanche Lee, and Florence Tom, yesterday went to the service men's center at 430 S. Michigan av., and presented Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of the mayor, with an invitation, printed both in Chinese and English, to the event. The demonstration will mark the seventh year since Japan attacked China on the seventh day of the seventh month in 1937. The affair will open at 7 p. m. and will include the "dance of the dragons" and fireworks.

The State st. pageant will include the 100 piece Medinah Temple band, a 65 piece oriental band, a large group of chanters, and four companies of Shriner patrols and drill teams, all in colorful uniforms, said E. W. Shepherd, chairman of Medinah's committee coöperating with State st. merchants. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly will be invited to appear.

Broadcast Being Planned.

Plans are being made to broadcast the State st. show, which will start at 8:15 p. m. and continue to 10 p. m.

The Filipino Guerrillas of Bataan have surpassed their goal of $1,000,000 in war bond sales designed to supply two bombers to the armed forces, Dr. W. W. Sweet, chairman of the national groups division of the treasury's war bond organization, disclosed. The final bond total is expected to be announced by the Guerrillas, all former residents of the Philippines, at an informal public banquet and ball tonight in the Palmer House.

Filipino girls will be hostesses, and many WACs, WAVES, SPARS, and army and navy personnel and public officials will attend.

Bond sales of the 5th war loan of $31,400,000 brought the Chicago and Cook county total to $498,287,000, or 55.74 per cent of the quota, at the close of business Thursday, Philip R. Clarke, city-county chairman for the drive, said.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

"ACCORDING TO PLAN."

Gen. Marshall, Gen. Arnold, and Adm. King returned from Normandy and issued a report, thru the President, warning the nation that the war is by no means won.

Favorable reports of the fighting on that and other fronts have engendered, they assert, "a state of mind in this country against which we believe the public should be warned." They are fearful that overoptimism will result in slackening of production in war plants, which must be kept at its peak to replace the heavy losses of material in combat.

The point against overconfidence is well taken. Task force 58 should have made it clear to the Japs that they have lost control of the Pacific, never to be regained, but the desperate resistance of the enemy on Saipan does not indicate any slackening of their will to resist. In spite of their loss of the Cherbourg peninsula, the Germans, according to reports from that front, are still bitter antagonists in battle and sullen, defiant prisoners.

But if the leaders of our forces will look for the principal source of this overconfidence they will find it in their own organizations. It is their press officers and censors, rather than the correspondents, who control the overtones of the news from the battle areas.

It is natural, of course, for these officers to desire that plans of their commanders and the operations of their units should be represented as having foreseen all contingencies and overcome all obstacles; that everything should appear to be going according to plan, with losses far less than had been anticipated. It is natural, but it is also fatal to sound public appreciation of the way the war is really going.

It will be noted that in the Nazi bulletins their retreats [beg pardon, disengagements] are also "according to plan." Actually, there never has been a war yet between two foes of comparable strength that has gone according to plan in all its details. The winners have their reverses, their blunders, and their losses. The American public will have a better appreciation of the way the war is going if the effort to picture every operation as perfection achieved is stopped. It can only be stopped by orders from the top, because the present glossing of the news, while it may not be inspired there, is at least tolerated.

The public has had instances of deliberate suppression of unfavorable news. The most flagrant was at the Anzio beachhead, where correspondents were forbidden to transmit "discouraging" reports at a time when the situation was, as we have since learned, little short of desperate. That order apparently emanated from British sources, and it is to the credit of British correspondents and their newspapers that they protested it vigorously, but it involved American troops as well as British.

There were a few intimations, largely from German sources, in the first stages of the Normandy invasion that the port of Havre may have been one of the allied objectives. If so, it was not taken, and the capture of Cherbourg was treated as if it had been the principal objective of the opening campaign. Only now are we told by the chief engineering officer of the European theater that the port is not a complete solution to our shipping problem, and, in fact, will not replace the beachheads, but only supplement them to a valuable extent.

If the army and navy will be more frank with the public they will have less overconfidence of which to complain. We expect our armies to win, but we do not expect them to be successful in every detail. We know their commanders are good, but we also know they are not supermen. As long as there is a tendency by their subordinates to represent them as supermen the public is bound to underestimate the difficulties ahead.

MR. NELSON AND THE DRYS.

The rebuke which prohibition agitators received from Chairman Nelson of the war production board was deserved. Mr. Nelson's refusal to use as a lever for reshaping the national economy the powers vested in him for arming the nation for war is even more welcome and significant.

The production of alcohol in this country has reached a volume which the war production board regards as meeting all war demands. It allows the diversion of 20 to 25 million gallons to the whisky trade. That this alcohol will be used to increase the volume of second rate cut whisky offered for sale is, of course, beside the point. If the customers want to buy that kind of whisky, that is their business.

The Methodist church conference, in session at Atlanta, requested President Roosevelt to revoke the diversion order. The request was based upon an aversion to whisky, not on any showing that the prosecution of the war would be hampered by the diversion, and Mr. Nelson refused to accede.

"There are many people," he said, "who seem to think that the war production board ought to use its emergency powers to adjust the American economy or reshape American institutions according to their own pet notions. To do so would be to usurp the powers of the congress and the people."

He said that restrictions were placed on liquor production in order to provide alcohol for war purposes and that when those restrictions are no longer essential to the prosecution of the war the WPB has no warrant to retain them. Mr. Nelson, in his statement, went on to note that other pressure groups would like to see the WPB powers used to preserve the industrial competitive pattern that existed before the war.

"In my view," he said, "this idea is fraught with danger for the people. It would, in effect, prevent new competition and enterprise. The WPB should not and will not attempt to reshape the American economy, either in the pattern of the past or according to any theory of the future."

Mr. Nelson was a capable business man when he went to Washington, a believer in the system of free enterprise and competition under which he had won success. In the capital he has naturally been exposed constantly to infection by the virus of totalitarianism. He has been surrounded by New Dealers, who preach the gospel that the government knows best and who have worked assiduously to make permanent the controls that have been placed on the American people in the name of a war emergency. It is comforting to find that he has not succumbed to that infection, that he is still level headed enough to resist the egotism of those little minds who foolishly consider themselves capable of ordering the whole vast and intricate machinery of American industrial production.

It is the undaunted and determined will of the American people that every war time control must be liquidated the moment fighting stops, and it is good to know that in the coming battle to accomplish that end they can count on Mr. Nelson as one of their leaders.

PARTY MEMBER'S PRIVILEGE.

The United States maritime commission, a New Deal bureau presided over by Adm. Emory S. Land, cracked down on the two million dollar shipbuilding plant of the Marine Maintenance corporation at Bayonne, N. J., in January, 1943. The plant was seized and the corporation and two of its officers indicted for defrauding the government. The corporation and one of its officers, Gregory Ferend, president, were acquitted. The other officer was found guilty of keeping an improper set of books, but was acquitted of conspiracy.

Meanwhile, Adm. Land's commission moved to assure possession of this going concern, which employs 5,000 persons and has a weekly pay roll of $300,000. John Otterson, who resigned as an official of the maritime commission, came around to Clarence Y. Palitz, a broker, a month after the seizure, told him he was forming a concern known as the East Coast Shipbuilding company, and asked Palitz to be a director. Otterson said he was able to raise the money for financing. Later, Otterson's financing plans fell thru and Palitz had to lend the new company $200,000 and buy up $100,000 in debentures. Palitz thereupon became a director and chairman of the finance committee of the new outfit. Otterson, who put up a total of $1,900, became president at $25,000 a year with 10 per cent of all profits over $250,000.

The maritime commission turned over the Marine Maintenance yards to Otterson's new company, despite the fact that the commission's finance director had set up two conditions for such action: first, that the new organization must be an established shipbuilding company; and second, that it must have finances of at least $250,000. As soon as Otterson took over the number of executives jumped from 48 to 400 and they were provided with extensive private offices, private secretaries, and expensive furnishings.

This story is pieced together out of testimony given recently at a hearing by the subcommittee of the house merchant marine and fisheries committee. Some of it came from Palitz and the rest from officials of the indicted and seized corporation. With these facts in its possession, congress ought not to have any hesitancy about ordering a thoro investigation of the maritime commission and its totalitarian control of the shipbuilding industry. No Nazi ever feathered his nest any more softly than the New Deal party members who buy up $25,000 a year jobs for $1,900 and two million dollar corporations for $300,000 thru benefit of government seizure.

PEARL HARBOR HOLDS THE ANSWER.

The New Dealers, among them Sen. Lucas of Illinois, are shouting for the scalp of Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, the British minister of production, who said in an address in London that Japan was "provoked" into attacking the United States at Pearl Harbor. Capt. Lyttelton followed this remark with the statement that America wasn't forced into the war, that everybody knows where American sympathies lay, and that our country was never truly neutral even before the fighting started.

When the Japanese began to march toward Thailand and French Indo China, Mr. Roosevelt's administration sent Tokyo several warnings, each more stern than the last, and all of them implying that if the Japanese didn't back up, we would do something about it. The President halted shipments of oil and scrap iron to Japan, abrogated a trade treaty, froze Japanese funds, and gave the Japs what amounted to an ultimatum. At the same time we had favored one set of belligerents in the European war with lend-lease arms and supplies to the detriment of their opponents. Our warships were fighting German submarines in the Atlantic.

Certainly Capt. Lyttelton, like anybody else who thinks straight, can't call this neutrality. When the captain says Japan was "provoked" into attacking us he seems to imply that America was trying to create an incident which would leave the Japanese no choice but to attack. Perhaps, as he has intimated, he didn't mean just that. He may have used an unfortunate word.

In any event, the American public is entitled to know whether we were actually trying to pick a fight with Japan. The way to find that out is to force Mr. Roosevelt to disclose the facts of the Pearl Harbor incident. We can tell by the orders given to Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short whether the administration was trying to provoke war. The responsibility for Pearl Harbor also would be disclosed, something Mr. Roosevelt could not afford to have made public.

MR. PEPYS IN POLITICS.

1st July—Have always said that when people go out of town in summer they are likely to run into hotter weather than they had at home, for I never took a vacation, except in the far north, without getting swamped by a heat wave. So I hope the political visitors to our fair city during the past week will understand what happened, and not go back to their Main Streets saying Chicago is situated on the equator.

Think it would have been a good idea if the scribes who poured out millions of words on the Republican doings had carried thermometers into the hall to record the temperature at the speakers' stand. Understand that because of the lights it was much hotter there than anywhere else, and that the orators melted away under the eyes of the spectators. It would have been a great contribution to science to discover how much heat a political orator can stand without keeling over.

Read a lot in the papers about the fashions for women delegates and speakers, but didn't see a word about the correct apparel for statesmen in hot weather. Am wondering what kind of fabric for male suitings was the winner in the boiling point test. White linens, palm beach cloth, seersucker, and tropical weave worsteds had strong delegations present, and all wearers seemed to be equally uncomfortable and mussed up. They were in such a state that they couldn't help being Dewey men.

SALUTE TO THE ENGINEERS.

The men who win the beachheads
And capture distant sites
Receive the loftiest praises
For bravery reaching heights.

The gallant paratroopers
Who float down from the sky
Are men of nerve and sinew
Deserving tribute high.

In navy and in armies
Prodigious feats are done;
Let no one grudge the honors
Our fighting men have won.

But back of them are others
Who make the fine machines,
Design and build the air fields,
Take care of all routines.

They drive the great bulldosers
While bullets whis about,
Rebuild demolished cities,
Clean cluttered harbors out.

Their job to keep 'em moving,
They've done it brilliantly;
With turning wheels they're rolling
In air, on land, and sea.

While praising beachhead stormers
And men in parachutes,
We'll not forget the builders
From all the Institutes!

Anvils and Applejack.

Red Grevey's blacksmith shop stood next to our barn, from which, thru a knothole, I watched his anvil shooting on the Fourth of July. With bare torso covered by red hair glinting like gold wire in the early sun, he was a primitive, formidable animal.

In front of the shop he loaded the larger of two anvils—into a square hole in the face, made to hold tools for forging, he poured possibly a full cup of powder. Picking up the smaller anvil as if it were a feather, he set it over the charge. From the door a red-hot iron rod was thrust into the loose powder between the anvils, and then the neighborhood rocked and showers of caterpillars fell out of the lindens.

Forth came Red with a bottle of applejack, held high in tribute to the Democrats, as he understood the event. After a long drink he slapped his thighs loudly and arched backward to crow like a game rooster. Then the neighbors knew their blacksmith was well applejacked and r'aring for somebody to say something—so they stayed indoors.

Year after year they hoped some inscrutable act of Providence would get mixed up with the anvils, powder, and applejack, but that high authority as well as the local one showed no rash desire to interfere with Red and his anvil celebrations. Chiggers.

SEEING EVERYTHING.

I've visited the domiciles
Of many of our great;
I've viewed the scenery for miles
At Washington's estate;

I've stood upon the portico
And watched the sun grow mellow
As in the west 'twas sinking low
At dear old Monticello;

And I have even been to see
The home of Andrew J.;
The choicest spot in Tennessee
(That's what the natives say).

I've looked upon that fence of boards
That Mark Twain spread with glory
When he brought cheer to youthful hordes
With his exciting story;

And now I add to these great names
The home (whose praise I sing)
Of Pistol Packin' Jesse James.
Now I've seen ev'rything!

W. L. Hudson.

It's time to trot out, in salutation to our naval heroes, the message that Commodore Schley flashed to the victors of Santiago bay:

GOING THRU PREGNANCY WITH EQUANIMITY.

So many do's and don'ts are hurled at the expectant mother by well meaning friends, relatives, and neighbors that confusion is likely to follow. It may be worth while to review briefly a few of the incidental and the important signs of trouble. While no abnormal symptom should be neglected, only a few will be significant.

First of all, the 280 day interval should not be accompanied by pain anywhere. True enough, there may be minor discomforts, but if severe distress is encountered—even briefly—the doctor should be consulted without delay. Any dull or steady ache in the abdomen may be due to stretching of the uterine wall, or unusual congestion. It should not be ignored until an examination shows that all is going smoothly.

Backache is common. As we would expect, the ligaments which hold the bones of the pelvis in place soften. Furthermore, there is an increase in weight and the very shifting forward of the abdomen exerts considerable strain on the muscles of the lower spine and pelvis. Lying down for short intervals, a suitable support, or correction of posture will solve the difficulty.

When cramps in the legs occur, if the toes are grasped firmly and pulled toward the trunk, relief will come. Sometimes numbness and tingling will indicate that the diet is lacking in vitamins, particularly B.

Nausea or vomiting, or both, may prove bothersome. This will appear in about one-half of the first time pregnancies. We do not know why this manifestation exhibits itself, but the prospective mother is supposed to be extremely sensitive to some of the new cells which are being developed. As a rule, after the 10th to 12th week the episodes will vanish. But they may be aggravated if a toxic state is present. Our best remedies are good hygiene, the avoidance of fatigue and excitement, and freedom from the cares of the home. Small meals—five or six daily—with plenty of starches and sugars are suggested. Now and then mild sedatives will be helpful.

Heartburn may be combated by shunning constipation, by taking small portions of food at each sitting, thoro mastication, and leisurely eating. A soda tablet will prove effective with many; with others hydrochloric acid will be needed.

The most annoying symptom is fatigue and here we must make certain that the blood is at par, that there is no endocrine disturbance, and that the patient is not unduly concerned over her condition. Emotional upsets will sap vitality and the nervous system may require as much attention as the vital organs.

There are some disturbances which must not be overlooked. They include swelling of the feet, hands, or any region. This may denote toxicity — which demands speedy and skilled treatment. A weathervane is a rise in blood pressure, with albumin in the urine. Still another is a rapid gain in weight.

All these disorders point to the fact that the patient is severely poisoned. But this does not signify that the baby will be lost or that the mother is in danger. If the physician will take the matter in hand immediately, more often than not, skilled care will save the day. Fortunately these complications are rare and will be caught in plenty of time if periodic visits are made to the doctor's office.

PECULIAR REACTION.

N. B. writes: A man of 60, taking a routine physical, discovered that his blood was positive. After considerable treatment, he has been pronounced cured but he still is four plus. How is this possible?

REPLY.

There are cases wherein treatment will not influence the blood test. The individual is said to be "Wassermann fast." All acute phases of the disease have long since disappeared. Nothing more need be done. An annual checkup, however, is advised.

TROPICAL DISEASES.

J. B. writes: What permanent effects would follow malaria and yellow fever?

REPLY.

Under skilled management, recovery should ensue. Convalescence from yellow fever is usually complete. That from malaria may be prolonged. From time to time, tests should be made to make certain that the parasites have been thoroly eradicated.

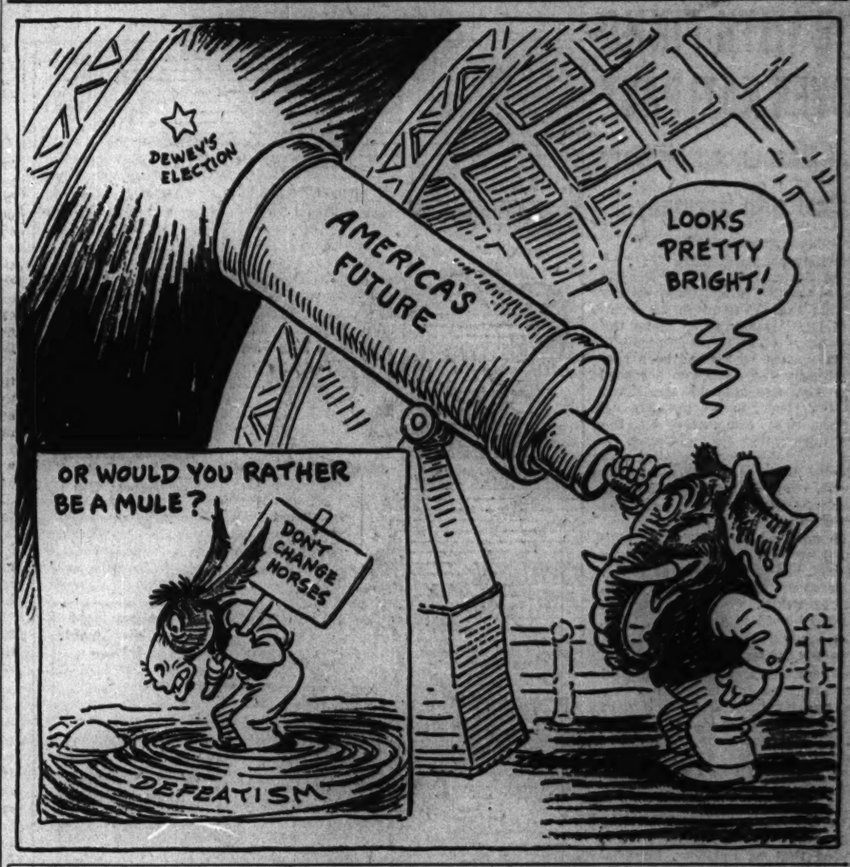
SWINGING ON A STAR



Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

We're on the Air!

One of the more extraordinary changes in the American scene is the way public life and undertakings are geared around radio time. If it were not for it, national political conventions might be held by mail. This would delay proceedings a trifle, and hold up the results a day or two, but it could not delay them more than they were delayed at the Republican convention while waiting for the air lanes to be free.

Any one who attended the Republican convention this year, or either convention in 1940, knows how ridiculous some of this waiting for the air gets to be. If a session is called for 10:15 a. m. or 8:15 p. m. you may be certain the first speech will not start for another 45 minutes, no matter how many thousands of persons may jam the hall and wait. The speech won't start, for the radio isn't ready. It is set for 11 a. m. or 9 p. m. In between come those fearful, almost depressing spurts of singing. It reached a pretty peak here one day this week when the assemblage had been led in "The Star-Spangled Banner," usually the opener, several times. It was hot, wiltingly so, and the crowd already had torn its tonsils out with the first singing. By now, still waiting for radio time, they had demolished the rest of their vocal cords with such scintillating ditties as "I want a girl just like the girl that married dear old dad" and, to the astonishment of all who thought the Democrats had an option on it, "Sidewalks of New York." Then the song leader, a gentleman whose ebullience was dimmed neither by the heat which left him with a streaming face and a soaking shirt nor by the anguished bits of song emitted by the crowd, raced to the microphone again. "Come on every one!" he yelled with a beautiful delight. "In just four minutes we're on the air! Now let's sing that first verse over again, so that we can go on the air with a bang!"

Then there was the unhappy predicament of former President Hoover. He was delivering what was said to be the best speech of his long career and delivering it better than he had ever delivered any speech when one of the radio men discovered that he was talking into the wrong microphone, one of several set up before him on the rostrum. Without a word of explanation he reached up and jerked it away, leaving Mr. Hoover with none. Mr. Hoover, reasonably upset, snatched it back from him. "Do you think I am an idiot?" Mr. Hoover muttered in an angry aside. [Fortunately it all happened during a burst of applause.] The radio man snatched it away again. At last some one with a little sense of fitness pushed the correct microphone in place, and all went on. That, however, is why no one in the first and second balconies could hear Mr. Hoover during the first part of his address, altho it went out to the world easily enough by radio.

But those rare moments when the air lanes were free and consecrated to the conventions and nothing happened in the convention hall, those were the bad moments. Then came that woeful ad-libbing. The day the platform was to be read the radio time began at 3:45 or 4 p. m. The session was called for 4 o'clock. Sen. Taft, who was to read it to the delegates, was on hand, but the platform was not. It was still being typed and mimeographed, so for 51 minutes the radio cohorts ad-libbed.

The only events that went off scrupulously on radio schedule were Clare Boothe Luce's speech, timed to the minute, and the arrival of Gov. Dewey for his acceptance speech. The latter event, seen from inside the stadium, seemed perfectly timed, but some unhappy friends who tuned in on it said the radio prefaced it all by saying, "Now we'll send you down to the northwest entrance to see Dewey come. . . . No, he isn't there. We'll send you to the platform for local color. . . . No, he isn't there. . . . Now we'll . . ." By the time the radio audience had been mentally dragged up and down every step in the Stadium, Gov. Dewey had arrived at the platform thru an unseen, unradioed route. Imagine that! And did any one else notice that Dewey spoke of "Gov. Ohio of Bricker"?

WASHINGTON'S WISDOM.

Keyport, N. J., June 25.—George Washington is now virtually the forgotten man of American history. His counsel against entangling alliances and his stature in political morality confound those who wish now to dilute the sovereignty of the nation which he founded; it would be unhandy indeed for their purposes to have the people recalled to an awareness that it was his wisdom which guided this nation to seek the substance of greatness in America, to avoid pursuing the shadow of it on other continents.

In Washington's day this nation was few in numbers and in resources compared with what it is today, yet the Americans of that day had no fear of the future. They were self-contained and sure of their own power to defend themselves, asked for no banding together in fear with some nations to intimidate others.

DOUGLAS P. SENTELL.

DIRTY ALLEYS.

Chicago, June 27.—For a few years I have noticed the deplorable condition of Chicago's alleys. I am a third generation Chicagoan and can honestly say that right now I am ashamed to admit it. To think that a city so important should be so negligent of its citizens' health!

I'd like to take the politicians for a stroll down some of Chicago's alleys and let them get a good whiff of the garbage odors and almost be knocked down by flies, mosquitoes, and enormous rats. Let the politicians make what excuses they wish, I say Chicago's alleys must be cleaned up. The war and man power shortage can't be alibis, because the alleys were filthy before the war. DISGUSTED.

WASTE PAPER CEILINGS.

Chicago, June 22.—I have been wondering why our government spends so much time asking the public to save waste paper of all kinds stating that it is needed for war purposes when the OPA has put the price so low that it does not pay the junk dealer to go around to collect it except newspapers?

I am a stationery dealer and I have a lot of waste paper and cardboard to give, but nobody wants it, so therefore I have to burn it up, which is a shame. I have no storage space for it but I will say it averages about 100 pounds a month and some months more.

R. A. V.

BOND DRIVE INCENTIVE.

Chicago, June 29.—Recently the government confiscated thousands of pairs of nylon stockings, selling them at a ceiling price of $1.65, limiting three pair to a customer. Why didn't some one of our New Deal geniuses devise a scheme whereby purchasers of a bond received permission to buy one pair of nylons with every bond purchased? No woman in Chicago would turn down such a deal. Try us, and beat out the black market at the same time.

SHE'D THROW 'EM.

Winfield, Ill., June 23.—If eggs are so nourishing for human beings, why are they fed to hogs? I would suggest holding them a little longer until they are good and rotten and then throw them at the price administrators.

E. W. C.

WOULD JAIL STRIKE ORGANIZERS.

Chicago, June 24—Ever since I can remember I have been reading THE TRIBUNE daily but never in all these years have I enjoyed an article so much as the write-up given to the crew of the U. S. S. Coos Bay for their donation of $412 to the "money hungry" striking members of the Wright Aeronautical corporation at Lockland, O., or as they termed it, "if the Wright strike is over just choose another. There are plenty on hand."

These saboteurs of American war industries, and that is really all they can be called, have that criticism and much more coming to them. Not the actual workers so much as the heads of these unions that are responsible for these strikes are the real saboteurs. They, in their greed for power and money, are willing to sacrifice the lives of our American boys and even jeopardize the safety of our nation for it.

Why can't these disorganizers of our national unity be put behind bars for the duration so that we, the real Americans, whether white, colored, Jew or gentile, can work together to finish this war so our boys can come home sooner?

THE WILLIAMS.

WANTS A PURE WORDS LAW.

New York, June 23.—Nowadays, as every one knows, packaged goods may be bought by even the most credding person without fear of deception. The law requires that every ingredient in the attractive looking package be plainly printed on its outside. That sweet taste is now known to be imparted partly by corn syrup and not by pure cane sugar only when such is the case, and citric acid no longer hides behind the mask of luscious lemon juice.

The thought occurs that this reform could be extended to the realm of the spoken and written word. Food for the mind deserves as good protection as bodily nourishment. A wise law would make compulsory the addition of some such phrase as, "This statement is made for propaganda purposes"—when that objection is actually intended—at the beginning or the conclusion of all public verbal outpourings. Another form of figurative label would be: "This argument has as one of its principal ingredients the speaker's private interests." ALBERT A. VOLK.

Oak Park, Ill., June 28.—After seeing and hearing Rep. Clare Boothe Luce last night at the Stadium, I think the Republicans passed up a sure candidate to beat the glamor boy in the White House.

SALE AFTER PROBATE OF WILL.

Chicago, June 30.—I was recently discharged as the executor of my father's estate. The heirs are four adult sons. A piece of real estate remains to be sold and according to the probated will I have the sole right to sell the property. We are agreed as to the sale. Do we have to have the property transferred to all four heirs before selling?

NYE APPARENT WINNER IN CLOSE DAKOTA PRIMARY

Votes of Soldiers May Decide Election.

Fargo, N. D., June 30 [Special].—In the closest race in this state in years, Sen. Gerald P. Nye, foe of New Dealers and internationalists, tonight had gained a sufficient lead in returns from Tuesday's primary to indicate he had won Republican renomination on the basis of the present count.

However, absentee voters' ballots, particularly those of soldiers, may decide the election. Reports from 44 of the 53 county auditors in the state show that 8,855 ballots mailed to soldiers have yet to be returned. These may be counted if they are in the hands of county auditors by July 17, 20 days after the primary. The state canvassing board will meet between that date and July 27.

Shows Gradual Gain.

Latest reports from the exciting see-saw contest showed Nye had a margin of 950 votes, with only 31 precincts in the state unreported. This represented a marked improvement of his position since last night when he held a very slim lead after coming from behind earlier in the day.

Returns from 2,220 of North Dakota's 2,251 precincts gave Nye 38,079 votes; Lynn U. Stambaugh, an internationalist and former national commander of the American Legion, 37,129, and Rep. Usher L. Burdick 34,986.

In early returns Nye was at one time more than 2,500 votes behind Stambaugh, a Fargo attorney who received heavy support from city voters, whose ballots are more quickly counted. But yesterday afternoon Nye overtook Stambaugh, as returns trickled in from the rural districts where the incumbent was strongest.

Error Is Discovered.

The senator gained a lead of nearly 400 votes, then dropped back in the count last night to a margin of only 139 with 94 precincts missing. However, additional reports and discovery of a transmission error in figures from Morton county increased his lead by about 750 votes and he continued to hold first place as more belated returns came in.

Nye has been in the senate since 1925. During the present campaign he was attacked from outside the state by New Dealers and superworld staters because of his long record for consistent nationalism.

His opponent in the November election will be Gov. John Moses, Democrat, who was unopposed in the primary.

NYE FINDS IT "GRATIFYING."

In Chicago, Sen. Nye said the result was "very gratifying, especially in the face of the opposition I had."

Asked if he were referring to the American Legion, which backed Stambaugh, he replied, "No, I was thinking of the CIO, the internationalists, and those who don't like me because I don't get along with Willkie."

Nye said he anticipated another three-party fight this fall in his home state. He said he was sure Stambaugh would not run as an independent.

Regarding the Republican national ticket, Nye said, "The battle this fall under the Dewey banner ought to be a smooth one from the Republican standpoint. He said the Republican trends are 'way, 'way up.

"In fact," he added, "I seriously doubt if Mr. Roosevelt will be a candidate this fall in face of these trends."

The senator and Mrs. Nye left yesterday afternoon for Washington, D. C., where he said they would remain until mid-July, returning then to North Dakota.

NEGROES FAVOR NOMINEE DEWEY, LEADER REPORTS

At least 80 per cent of the Negro voters in the northern states are in favor of Gov. Dewey since the Republican nominee's statement assuring investigation of alleged racial discrimination in the army and navy and in war plants, Edgar G. Brown, Washington, D. C., director of National Negro council, estimated yesterday.

The council, Brown said, recently took a poll among Negro voters in 23 northern states and found Dewey a three to one favorite over other possible nominees and over President Roosevelt. He said that the Negro council would organize more than 10,000 Dewey clubs within the next few weeks.

"Gov. Dewey's forthright statements on the Negro question have made him a favorite with my people," Brown said. "For two years we have tried to get President Roosevelt to take a stand on the Negro question but he has refused to do so."

G. O. P. CHANGES COMPLETE, SAYS 1940 CANDIDATE

New York, June 30—[Special].—Wendell L. Willkie, when informed tonight of the changes made in the officers of the Republican national committee, especially the replacement of Sinclair Weeks, personal and political friend as national treasurer, laughed heartily.

"They're certainly making it complete, aren't they?" he said, apparently referring to the elimination of his supporters from all posts of responsibility in the committee.

Weeks was one of Willkie's closest political friends. He was active in the Willkie pre-nomination campaign of 1940 and served as assistant manager of the eastern campaign headquarters after the nomination. He also was active in Willkie's behalf this year prior to the latter's withdrawal as a candidate for the nomination following his defeat in the Wisconsin primary.

TOM DEWEY AID TELLS KIND OF MAN U. S. NEEDS

America needs men who are more eager to be right than to be reelected, Lt. Gov. Joseph R. Hanley of New York said yesterday before the Executives' club of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman.

"It is hard to go thru your public career and not face the fact that in a few months more you will go out into the highways and campaign to be returned," Hanley said. "At the same time a man who is thinking of reelection does not make the finest type of representative. We need in America today, as much as anything else, men who are more anxious to be right than they are to be reelected."

Sure He'll Become Governor.

Lt. Gov. Cross of Illinois pointed out in introducing the speaker that it was the custom of the club to invite men who are "governors or higher," but said Hanley "qualifies because he will be governor of New York next January when Gov. Dewey becomes President."

Hanley, a state senator for eight years, won the office of lieutenant governor in a special election, thus assuring continuation of a Republican administration if Dewey is elected President and resigns as governor.

Declaring he feared equally the tyranny of the dictator and that of the mob, Hanley said the founding fathers had established a compromise government so that elected officials must give an account to the electorate and, under proper methods, either be returned to power or replaced.

In an aside from his prepared address he declared one of the great dangers to democracy today is the multitude of appointees who are not elected and over whom the electorate has no control, who are circumscribing the liberties of the nation.

Dependent on Representatives.

"Today democracy is vitally dependent upon the type of representatives we have, upon their intelligence, their information, their ability, and their equipment for office," Hanley asserted. "This perhaps is evidenced in our diplomatic field more than any other. Every time the American eagle sits in a diplomatic conference in Europe, he comes back plucked to the pinfeathers."

One of the dangers of American life, the New York official said, is the appeal to certain classes or groups or organizations in order to obtain their votes, the officials becoming in a sense servants of the very groups they have been promising to support.

"We are breeding a spirit of class hatred and intolerance into our people's lives that some day we will reap with a very bitter reaping," Hanley warned.

BRICKER TAKES REST AT HOME; NO FISHING TRIP

Columbus, O., June 30 (AP).—Gov. Bricker, Republican nominee for Vice President, returned to his office today to clear his desk for a rest—which he likely will take at home.

He spiked reports he would fly to South Dakota Sunday for a week of fishing. The governor said he does not contemplate any trip much as he would like it. His greatest wish of the moment is to get a good night's sleep.

He expressed hearty approval of the election of Herbert Brownell Jr., as chairman of the Republican national committee.

G. O. P. MEETING SETS 6 RECORDS FOR ONLY $50,000

Cost a Third as Much as 1940 Session.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Plowing thru stacks of bills, Chairman Walter S. Hallanan of the arrangements committee yesterday found that the Republican convention cost only one-third as much as the 1940 show in Philadelphia, while establishing the following "firsts" in G. O. P. history:

1.—First time that no opposition names were submitted in nominating candidates for President and Vice President.

2.—First time that two governors were nominated.

3.—First time that the Presidential candidate made his acceptance speech at the convention.

4.—First time that the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees appeared on the convention platform together.

The Cost: Only $50,000!

In keeping the cost down to about $50,000, compared with $150,000 in 1940, the Republicans saved $15,000 in Stadium rental and other expenses by avoiding fourth and fifth day sessions. Hallanan, a West Virginia oil man, philosophically remarked that his personal expenses were $2,500. Chairman Ernest M. Morris of the housing committee spent $1,000 of his own money in carrying out his duties.

To Gov. Green he wrote that the unusual burdens encountered because of war conditions were immeasurably lightened by the cooperation of state agencies and officials.

"We were particularly pleased with the help given by Director Sullivan of the state department of public safety and the state police under his direction," he wrote.

Mayor Kelly Thanked, Too.

Mayor Kelly, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, received a warm note. It read in part:

"I have participated in the arrangements for several Republican national conventions, but no where have I ever received a finer cooperative spirit than here. I was particularly pleased with the work of Tom Garry in preparing the Stadium for the convention, and with the splendid job done by Police Commissioner Allman and Chief Prendergast of the uniformed division in handling crowds in and around the convention hall."

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the Citizens Committee of Chicago which was formed to raise funds for the convention, was thanked for the generous invitation of Chicago at a time when no other city was in a position to compete for the event.

cause of the party and the future of the country."

Schroeder Named Vice Chairman.

As Dewey left the room the committee went into executive session to elect Nebraska born Brownell to the chairmanship. Other new officers are Treasurer Jouett Ross Todd of Kentucky and four vice chairmen, Ezra R. Whitla of Idaho, Werner W. Schroeder of Illinois, Mrs. Horace H. Sayre of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown of Ohio. Harold W. Mason of Vermont was reelected secretary.

Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa, retiring chairman, was named general counsel to the committee. He succeeds Henry P. Fletcher of New York, former chairman of the committee.

James P. Selvage, publicity director of the committee, submitted his resignation, effective today. The publicity director of the committee receives $25,000 a year. Other officers serve without compensation.

Dewey Once Brownell Manager.

Brownell, who is two years younger than Dewey, was born in Peru, Neb., Feb. 20, 1904. He was graduated from the University of Nebraska and the Yale law school. He is now a partner in Lord, Day and Lord, one of New York City's oldest law firms.

Brownell and Dewey entered politics together as election district captains. In their first association their roles were the reverse of what they are today. Brownell was the candidate and Dewey his manager. Brownell served five terms in the New York state legislature.

He worked for Dewey's nomination in the 1940 convention at Philadelphia. In 1941 he successfully managed the campaign of Edgar J. Nathan Jr. for Manhattan borough president and in 1943 was equally successful in directing the campaign of Joe R. Hanley for lieutenant governor of New York.

Headquarters City Uncertain.

Brownell did not manage Dewey's 1940 campaign for governor, but was in charge of the 1942 campaign, which ended 20 years of Democratic control of New York by a majority of nearly 650,000 votes.

In a press conference after his election Brownell smilingly told reporters that he is not making any predictions at this time and has no definite campaign plans. He is not certain whether national headquarters will be in Chicago or New York.

Both Dewey and his pretty brunette wife were busy during the last hours of their two day stay. Except for the brief excursion to the Blackstone hotel for the national committee meeting, Dewey kept to his suite in the Stevens hotel.

The Deweys arose early and breakfasted with members of the family. The latter part of the morning was spent in posing for family pictures with Mrs. Dewey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Hutt of Sapulpa, Okla., and the governor's mother, Mrs. George M. Dewey of Owosso, Mich.

Mrs. Dewey devoted the afternoon to meeting women members of the national committee. The arrangements were made for her by Mrs. Charles W. Weis Jr., New York national committeewoman. Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers of Chicago, president of the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs, was a caller.

Collision at Sea

Boston, Mass., June 30 (AP).—A coastal minesweeper was sunk in collision with a destroyer escort vessel off Cuttyhunk last night and seven men—two officers and five crew members—of the minesweeper are missing, the navy announced today.

First naval district headquarters said seven others—the commanding officer and six enlisted men—of the minesweeper were picked up by naval and coast guard rescue craft. The destroyer escort aided and assisted in the search for others.

The navy said the destroyer escort suffered no apparent damage. Names of the missing were not disclosed.

MONEY PARLEY DELEGATES RIDE SPECIAL TRAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—A special train carrying delegates of the United States and other nations left here today for Bretton Woods, N. H., where the international monetary conference called by President Roosevelt convenes tomorrow. Forty-four nations will be represented at the conference. There are 300 official delegates to the conference and a small army of secretaries, official translators, stenographers and other assistants. Sixty newspaper men have been accredited to the conference.

RED DRIVE PUT ABOVE DEWEY IN ARMY PAPER

ROME, June 30 (AP).—The army newspaper Stars and Stripes, in the edition published for troops here, presented accounts of the Republican national convention to American troops in Italy, with the nomination of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for President losing top play yesterday to the Russian offensive. Today, however, the Republicans drew top play over all war news.

Stars and Stripes stories of the convention proceedings were supplied thru the Army News service.

There was no editorial comment because Stars and Stripes has no editorial column.

Dewey's nomination was carried under a three column head in the middle of the first page below a map of the Russian front.

TELL OF STORIES SENT.

Captain William Murphy, in charge of the Army News service office in New York, said ANS filed about 2,000 words each day on convention proceedings to Mediterranean editions of Stars and Stripes, with possibly more than that on the day of Dewey's nomination.

He said the manner in which stories were played in the various editions was entirely up to the editors.

Master Sgt. Ben Price, New York bureau correspondent for Stars and Stripes in the European theater of operations, said he had filed approximately 4,000 words daily during the convention to Stars and Stripes published in that area.

Captain Murphy, declaring that the European and Mediterranean editions of Stars and Stripes were completely separated. He said European editions received the ANS stories on the convention in addition to those filed by Price.

Rules Governs Reporting.

A New York Times dispatch from Algiers, Algeria, said rules by the Army News service designed to prevent biased political reporting "seem to exact such mathematically precise weighing up of the sides and such a thoro citing of sources that an article conforming to them would look more like a heavily footnoted contribution to an encyclopedia than a readable political story."

The war department had disapproved a plan of Stars and Stripes to publish domestic reports by the Associated Press and United Press, the dispatch said.

The bulk of soldiers "will have little opportunity to keep informed of the issues thru adequate news of events and speeches at home," the Times dispatch said.

A Rome dispatch said Stars and Stripes carried a 550 word story describing how New York newspapers covered the event.

F. D. R. SIGNS BILL GIVING BILLIONS TO LEND-LEASE

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt signed today a $3,920,320,000 supply bill to finance aid to the nation's allies during the fiscal year starting tomorrow. Approximately $3,450,500,000 is earmarked for the lend-lease program, with the rest allocated to the foreign economic administration and the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

In addition to the new funds granted lend-lease, the legislation authorizes the use of nearly $4,000,000,000 previously appropriated, thus giving the program more than $7,000,000,000 for the year.

The measure authorizes diversion of $350,000,000 to UNRRA if the chiefs of staff certify it is not needed for lend-lease.

ROWE PLEDGES 'BUSINESS AS USUAL' POLICY

Secretary of State Will Use Ax Sparingly.

Secretary of State Richard Yates Rowe yesterday took over the office vacated by the death of Edward J. Hughes and assured Democratic department heads there would be no immediate wholesale influx of Republicans.

Changes are expected in some key positions, but not until after an audit of department finances which will require several weeks. Such fixtures as Lewis Vogel, for 40 years head of the index department which handles election matters, are certain to remain.

"This office has a reputation for efficiency," the Republican incumbent told the employes. "I want business to go on just as usual."

1,941 Employes on Pay Roll.

Attentive to detail, Rowe said he expects to find opportunities for improvement after he gets to know more about the workings of the office, which now has 1,941 employes. Of these 890 are year-round positions, he said.

Rupert Bippus, conusel for State Treasurer William G. Stratton, is assisting Rowe at the request of Gov. Green. Bippus was chief adviser to Secretary of State William J. Stratton, the deceased father of the present treasurer.

Republicans now control the entire state administration. Hughes was the only Democrat to survive the G. O. P. sweep in 1940. Coming on the eve of the national election, this acquisition may have an important role in the outcome.

Arnold P. Benson, president pro tem of the state senate and Republican nominee for secretary of state, could not be appointed to the vacancy because of a constitutional prohibition. The Democratic nominee is Edward J. Barrett, former state auditor and treasurer.

Tyrrell to Get Party Post.

Secretary Rowe is resigning as executive secretary of the state budgetary commission and as chairman of the Republican state central committee. The latter office, to which Rowe was elected less than two months ago, will be filled at least temporarily by Vice Chairman John F. Tyrrell of Chicago.

Gov. Green said he had not had time to think about the positions vacated by Rowe. Other Republican leaders were in no hurry to move in these matters.

A Jacksonville insurance executive by occupation, Rowe is a grandnephew of Richard Yates Sr., Illinois Civil war governor, and a second cousin of Richard Yates Jr., governor from 1901-05. His regret is that his new job will keep him from spending much time with two soldiers sons. Fred, 20, is here on a six day pass, and Richard Jr., 21, will arrive on a furlough Sunday.

Presentation

Lambert Tree and Carter H. Harrison gold medals for extraordinary heroism in 1941, 1942 and 1943 were presented to three city firemen and three policemen by Mayor Kelly yesterday at the city hall. Police Commissioner James P. Allman and members of the civil service commission witnessed the presentations.

The Lambert Tree medals were given to: Patrolman Maurice J. Broderick, Lawndale station, who shot a bandit in 1943; Patrolman John A. Will, Woodlawn station, who captured a bandit in a gun battle in 1941; and Fireman Andrew A. Cafferata, truck company No. 3, who rescued three children from a burning kitchen in 1942.

Carter H. Harrison medal winners were: Patrolman Anthony J. Comiskey, motorcycle division, capturing four ex-convicts in 1942, altho wounded; Fireman Bernard A. Morgan, truck company No. 3, saving a man in a gas filled room in a burning building in 1943; and Fireman Otto W. Schlaw, engine company No. 33, for saving five children from a burning building in 1941.

OPEN MORE BIDS JULY 10 ON BIG FILTER PROJECT

Work on the underdrains and wash water troughs of the city's 23 million dollar filtration plant at 79th st. and the lake is rapidly nearing completion, and bids for construction work on super-structure and buildings will be opened on July 10, W. W. DeBerard, city engineer, said yesterday.

The huge plant, nearly two-thirds completed, will supply pure drinking water to 1,500,000 south side residents now compelled to use heavily chlorinated water because of sewage and industrial waste which is allowed to flow into the lake from northern Indiana cities and industries.

It is expected that water at least 70 per cent free from bacteria will be furnished by fall, when the coagulation and sedimentation processes of the plant will be completed. Equipment for the final, or filtration process, which will remove virtually all the remaining impurities, is being postponed because of the lack of priorities.

Bar on Sleeve to Show Vet's Service Overseas

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—A service bar was authorized for army men today to indicate each six-month period of service overseas. The bar, to be worn on the left sleeve, is a four-inch rectangle of cloth with gold-colored edging, worn just above the cuff. Service will be computed from the date of departure from the United States to the date of return.

KELLY ELECTED COUNTY LEADER OF DEMOCRATS

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Mayor Kelly was named 50th ward committeeman, made a member of the Democratic county committee and elevated to chairman at the committee's meeting yesterday.

A committee was named to notify the mayor. The members were off like the wind and fetched him back to the Morrison hotel in practically no time. There he made his acceptance speech and asserted that it is time to stop Republican propaganda "that the Democratic organization is not going down the line for the entire ticket."

Backing Ticket, Says Kelly.

"We are for the whole ticket from top to bottom," the mayor asserted. "We have the best ticket and are proud of it."

The mayor also said that this year it is a credit to be a Democrat because God is on the Democrats' side. He did not reveal where he gleaned this information.

"The Democratic organization in every city is usually called a machine," Kelly told the committee. "We learned this week that we didn't know anything about a machine. There was never in history anything like that which happened at the Stadium."

The mayor said the Republicans nominated a man they didn't want and then wondered what happened. He called the convention the operation of one man—but didn't name him.

The primary vote rolled up by the Democrats in the primary with no opposition, the speaker said, is the talk of the United States. He urged those present to toil faithfully to assure a full house Monday at the state convention in the Stadium. The mayor said he wanted plenty of signs, noise and activity.

Quinn to Be Kelly Proxy.

He assured the listeners there will not be a dull moment at the Democratic national convention which begins in the Stadium on July 19. He said the Democrats have the only man with the ability to sit at the peace table, and added that President Roosevelt is a man who would die for the country, if necessary.

Kelly said he didn't plan to be very busy as 50th ward committeeman and named Ald. Quinn to serve as his proxy. It was announced the pre-platform committee of Democrats will meet today in the Morrison hotel as a prelude to the state convention.

PROMOTED IN MILITIA.

WPA DIES AFTER 8 YEAR SPENDING OF $12,974,456,687

In its eight years of active life the WPA spent $10,136,743,293 of federal funds employing the jobless. To match the federal outlay, other sources contributed $2,837,713,394, bringing the total WPA outlay to $12,974,456,687.

In the last year the WPA [born the works progress administration] has been in liquidation under the federal works agency. All domestic WPA projects shut down a year ago, but some work continued in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

PICKS POCKET OF A DELEGATE; GETS JAIL TERM

Judge Francis Borrelli in Felony court yesterday sentenced Buster Pintozzi, 34, to 90 days in the county jail on Pintozzi's plea of guilty to a charge of petty larceny. Mayor M. C. Roberts of Texico, N. M., an alternate delegate to the Republican national convention, accused Pintozzi of picking his pocket of a wallet containing $441 while both were riding on a motor bus. Mayor Roberts said he felt a hand in his pocket and when he turned around he saw Pintozzi throw up his arms and the wallet drop to the floor.

DRIVERS LACKING U. S. STAMP FACE SUMMONS TODAY

Motorists without their federal use tax stamp sticker will be considered delinquent today, Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue here, said yesterday. He added that deputy collectors will be out today to attach summons on delinquent motorists requiring them to appear at the collector's office for explanation. Daniel J. Conerty, chief deputy collector, said failure to answer the summons would subject delinquent motorists to court appearance where they would face a maximum fine of $25, or 30 days in jail, or both.

NEGROES DECIDE ON TOKEN VOTE IN GEORGIA TEST

Atlanta, Ga., June 30 (AP).—Atlanta Negro leaders today disclosed they plan only token voting attempts in the July 4 Georgia Democratic primary to complete their case for an appeal to United States District court.

Announcing a resolution adopted by the Citizens' Democratic club of Fulton county, a Negro organization, Club President C. A. Scott said only officers and members of the group's executive committee would offer to vote.

The club recommended that there be no wholesale attempts by Atlanta Negroes to vote in the primary, and requested the county's 4,397 registered Negro voters to cooperate by staying away from the polls. There are 55,006 registered white voters.

The Democratic state executive committee recently reaffirmed its opposition to Negro participation in the election, and said only qualified white voters would be eligible.

Jean Hamilton to Be Married This Afternoon

BY JUDITH CASS.

"MR. AND Mrs. Howard Vincent O'Brien announce the marriage of their daughter, Jean Hamilton, to James Mark Lowman, lieutenant, army of the United States," read the announcements which friends of the O'Briens will be receiving soon. The wedding, a small informal ceremony, will take place at 4:30 p. m. today in the little white chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church, and later the O'Briens are asking a few close friends in to drink a toast to their daughter and her bridegroom.

Mrs. Volney Craig, the former Allene Withers, has come from New York to be Mrs. Hamilton's attendant, along with the bride's two little daughters, Toni and Heather. Here from Omaha, Neb., are Lt. Lowman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lowman; his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Morse Palmer, and Mrs. Bernard Wickham. Mr. Palmer will be best man. When Lt. Lowman's 15 day leave is up he and his bride will go to Fort Riley, Kas.

Engagement News.

From Sterling Ridge, Rye, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. James Perry Gillies, formerly of Winnetka, send word of the engagement and approaching marrige of their daughter, Ruth Sadler, to Corp. James Christie Stagg Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stagg of Leonia, N. J., and Quogue, N. Y. Miss Gillies, whose family is widely known in Chicago and on the north shore, attended the North Shore Country Day school, the Rye Country Day school, and Miss Porter's in Farmington, Conn., and made her debut in Rye in 1942. Last year she spent six months in Winnetka with her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie.

Before entering the army Corp. Stagg attended the Berkshire school and was graduated from the Taft school in Watertown, Conn.

Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie and their children, Madeleine and Ross, will go east for the wedding, which will take place July 15 in the Episcopal church in Rye. Missing from the family circle will be the bride's brother, Lt. James P. Gillies Jr., whose wife is staying with her parents in Southport, Conn., while he is on duty with the navy in the South Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Thair Morledge of Akron O., announce the engagement of their daughter, Peggy, to Robert Adler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Adler of Highland Park. Miss Morledge is a student at Purdue university. Her fiancé, a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school, was stationed at Purdue in a navy V-12 program and now is at a pre-midshipman's school at Asbury Park, N. J.

Holiday Events,

Altho the traditional display of fireworks will be missing, there will be no absence of Independence day gayety at the country clubs, with the exception of the Chicago Golf club, which has canceled its annual July 4th dance in respect to the memory of Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore, wife of the club's president, who died last Sunday, and also because of the war. However, the club's golfers will compete Tuesday for the president's trophy and for prizes in an 18 hole handicap class.

Festivities of the holiday weekend for members of the Exmoor Country club will begin today with the opening of the annual 54 hole July 4th golf derby and a tennis tournament. The winners of both competitions will be awarded trophies Tuesday. There will be a dinner-dance tonight and buffet suppers tomorrow and Tuesday.

The holiday celebration also will begin today in Lake Forest, with

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

[Hedda Hopper, who came to Chicago to attend the Republican national convention, has been writing her column temporarily in this city.]

IF the story is true, the Democrats put over one of the steamingest deals ever perpetrated, I'm told, but couldn't confirm it, that there was a cooling system installed in the convention hall but an order was given not to turn it on until the Democratic convention. So the delegates were not only steaming but so angry that they were united in a solid mass of fighting humanity. . . . Before the November election another sensational divorce suit will hit the front pages—sensational because the principals are prominent names in our national capital. . . . At Ida Koverman's luncheon for Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. Warren was complimenting Gracie Allen on her column, saying, "I think it's so entertaining." Whereupon Gracie replied, "O, that makes me so happy. I've tried so hard to make it intellectual." Later Gracie was swapping political views with Alice Longworth which, if put in script form, would get the comedy rating of the year. Alice didn't mind the lack of enthusiasm when Gov. Dewey's name was mentioned. In fact, she tried to convince me it was a good sign. Told me the same thing happened when Calvin Coolidge was nominated, and look what happened to him. Well, here's hoping that lightning will strike again. . . . We'll miss Alice's annual visit to California this summer. Her daughter has other plans which I suspect are romantic. And why not?

Time Out to Cut the Cake.

Took time out to help cut a cake at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer office in Chicago for the windup of their 20th anniversary. What a nice gang! If it hadn't been for their Warren Slee we would have lingered longer and probably been carried out feet first from this hot box. . . . I'd better be careful what I say about Chicago's climate. I have a radio deal cooking here. And I mean cooking! . . . Will Hays was covering the town, giving his blessings to Gov. Bricker, who really did an outstanding job taking second place. Hays didn't even ask to look over the scripts here as he does in our town. Maybe he thought the speeches were dull enough to begin with. . . . But, no foolin'! Gov. Dewey's speech hit the right spot. He has plenty on the ball. So had George Dewey 'way back in 1898, when he sank the opposition [the Spanish fleet] at the battle of Manila. It's Tom now instead of George. And the question is, "Will we sink or swim with Dewey?"

A Little of This and That.

Jack Owens, who wrote the Hut Sut song, is making a place for himself in Chicago. He was introduced to producers at a prominent Hollywood studio a few months ago and asked to sing his own compositions, but before he could get into do-re-mi, a former song writer, now producer, started singing his new number, so Jack was left with a discord. That was the final thing which sent him east, thence here, where he has his own radio show. . . . Omar Kiam is heading for Hollywood July 7 for a rest and not a movie job. But I'd like to make him a bet that he'll design clothes for some queen while he's out there. . . . Bess Farley showed me a letter from husband Jim saying, "Who's your publicity man? Could you hire him for me?" When her daughter arrived here she started calling her mother "Dolly Madison Farley." Jim is coming here from Texas. . . . While Bess was here doodling, Jim and John Garner were huddling in the Lone Star state, but take it from me they weren't lonely. . . . I'm off for home. As a political reporter I've discovered, only because I've heard it so many times, that Hollywood is my beat. So if you don't mind, I'll just stick to it. But gosh, this has been fun!

Thru the Looking Glass

Sometimes we forget that there are women who don't want any part of a sun tan. On them it doesn't look good.

These are the women who like to be pink and white of coloring, who find tan unbecoming. Or they're the women, usually fair, for whom any exposure to the sun is uncomfortable and anything but prettifying. They freckle or turn lobster pink.

They want, for the summer months, not tanning agents that give a rich toast tint, but tried and true protectives that help the white skin remain white and unblemished by so much as one freckle. They wear big hats, and they have an understandable love for the parasol; they also take the trouble to coat themselves generously with a good protective before they venture out in the noonday sun.

One of the great beauty specialists, who has lovely products for those who want to bronze deeply, has remembered the anti-tanners as well with a cream that is strong armor against the sun in every way. It comes in five quite good flesh tints and is used most frequently as a makeup foundation for the face and the skin of the neck and arms, but it also can be used for top to toe protection. It's a pleasant cream and a most efficient one.

It might be rather expensive to use as an over-all protective when one wears a playsuit or a bathing suit, but some women do use it this way. What would probably be the best plan for the average woman who is just plain scared of the sun would be to keep out of it as much as possible. She also can use this cream for her face, arms, neck, and hands when dodging the sun is impossible. Coated with this, the skin will remain lily-fair and satin-soft, but the protective film won't either be visible or uncomfortable.

July Is Tops in Summer's Fashion Show

BY REA SEEGER.

Midsummer fashions are out in full swing this month. Now one can see everything that assures cool comfort: All the washables; the smartest kinds of straws; sheers from the skin out; the biggest, widest cartwheel hats of the season, and dark glasses with dramatizing colored rims or stark white ones.

The probable peak sales record has hit the controversial dresses minus sleeves and anything more than shoulder straps, teamed with a covering bolero to appease the critics. Most shocking of all, the first black satin and dull crepe dresses to hint of fall are here. These are the fashions that make July.

Take the straw offerings while you can, for the bags of this supercool, nonsticky material are the best bags for any summer day. Costly affairs are made of plaited raffia straw in huge circle bags. They come in copper, dark green, red, navy and black. Carrying straps for over the shoulder, or to be looped over the wrists, make snappy accessories with cotton suits.

Raffia sandals with thick wedge soles, also of braided raffia, are worn to complement these bags. Sandals are of the spectator sports variety, but the stunning bags can be worn with any street, town or travel ensemble.

Less expensive straw bags are the find of the week, for some are priced around the five dollar limit. Cool white straw braid is woven like a basket to make some businesslike envelopes. Less simple models have a band thru the center. All are lined with dark or dark printed cottons.

Some multicolored woven braids are ideal as an all-purpose bag, for they can be worn with any or all colors in a summer wardrobe. Dark beige, copper and the dark brown shades, together with the usual sunburnt shades are plentiful, and are easily matched to brimmed hats of the same straw and color.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Mrs. Rudolph W. Glasner and Mrs. Robert M. Schiller, volunteer heads of the camp and hospital committee of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, recently filled a request for recreational materials for the crew of an LSM [landing ship, medium] on its way overseas.

The ship's welfare officer explained that, during long runs in war theater waters and in periods of enforced idleness on shore leave, men of the crew need baseball and fishing equipment.

Before the ship left port in Chicago, the Red Cross motor corps delivered 15 cartons of articles, including bats, balls, and gloves, contributed by the Chicago Cubs baseball team; six complete sets of fishing tackle, given by the Sportsmen's Club of America, and games, playing cards, books, and magazines gathered by the Chicago Wellesley club, the B'nai B'rith women's auxiliary, the Order of the Eastern Star in Illinois, and the Junior Red Cross.

The camp and hospital committee has a constant program of assistance to service men in camps, on ships, and in hospitals. Women interested in working with the unit may obtain information about membership requirements by visiting headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., or calling Wabash 7850.

The "G. I. Country club," the service men's center at Fullerton av. and the lake in Lincoln park, will begin its season of hospitality to men and women in uniform at 9 a. m. today, with many of the official hostesses and canteen workers on duty.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Former Chicagoans.

New York abounds with former Chicago career girls. There's Marion Palmer, who came to New York via Washington and politics, has worked on a national magazine, been a designer, and now is one of the few women editors of a trade magazine of the shoe industry. Attractive as ever, she visits tanneries and shoe factories and, editorially, puts her best foot forward.

There's Rosemary Benet, whose mother was one of Chicago's women physicians. Since the death of her husband, Stephen Vincent Benet, Rosemary has been writing and translating children's books. . . . There's Dorothy Dignam, with a full blown job in advertising, who got her start in Chicago when her father presented her with a typewriter on her 12th birthday and said, "Here's your career, Dorothy." . . . There's Jane Thiriot, who specialized in facials in Chicago—ironing out tired lines—now working on an 11 p. m. to 8:30 a. m. shift as junior electrical engineer with the navy department and never admitting she ever is tired. . . .

Thelma.

Then there's Thelma Mortimer. She came to New York from Chicago on a vacation—and remained for one of the most outstanding careers in fashion illustrating ever achieved by a woman artist . . . remained to see her income soar from $60 a week to a figure topping that of a senator or bank president . . . to see a sophisticated New York store bid for her exclusive services.

There's a saying that fashion artists unconsciously draw themselves in their figures. Certainly something of the tall, pictorial Thelma is evident in her drawings. Now she often draws her small daughter, Kent, and sometimes [tho it's a secret] draws her tall, dark husband.

She has done a number of things, has had her own studio with its striped walls and striped drapes, has shared a studio with other artists, and now has her studio in her home in Great Neck. She has done magazine fashion drawings, booklets, patterns, and at one time illustrated a story for a swanky magazine, a ski story of St. Moritz but, alack aday, her signature was cut off the illustration. It caused so much comment she became, quite unexpectedly, the "whodunnit" girl of illustrators.

Illustrator.

Actually, Thelma studied art for only a year. "I wish I could tell young artists to take a full course," she says. Artists, she feels, change every few years in the trend of their work. At present she is interested in illustrating. She enjoys the research and the story interest involved in it. For example, she has done jackets for Kathleen Norris' novels—one which was fun particularly because it showed three figures in a delightful Victorian living room with dear old Quaker grandmother in portrait over the mantel looking down upon the war time triangle of girl, civilian, and returning soldier.

She believes that fashion drawing and illustrating hold much promise for women. "Some of the top fashion artists are men," she says, "and why shouldn't they be women?"

Why not, indeed, if this artist can dovetail a home [in servantless New York], a husband interested in her work, and the little daughter, Kent, of whom Thelma is so proud?

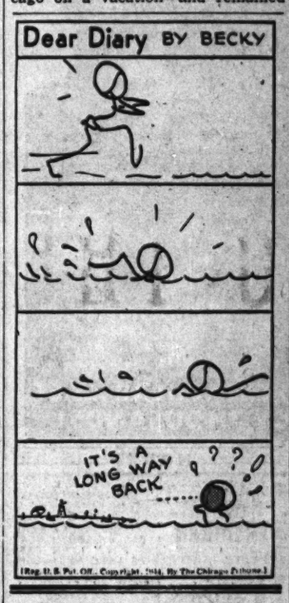
Dear Diary BY BECKY



[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Copyright, 1944, By The Chicago Tribune.]

"THE WHITE CLIFFS OF DOVER."

A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, directed by Clarence Brown, starring Irene Dunne, with Alan Marshall, Roddy McDowall, and Frank Morgan, and presented at United Artists and Apollo theaters.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"God will never forgive us if again we break our faith with our dead. . . ."

On this note ends the painful and beautiful picture based on Alice Duer Miller's poem, "The White Cliffs," the recital of which occasionally softly backgrounds the action.

This film, which is a powerful argument against war, also sings persistently of America's kinship with England, and, thru the heroine's attitude and words, stresses the point that Britain's battles should be America's fights, too. Events transpire over a period from just before World War I. to the horrors of the present holocaust. . . .

Irene Dunne plays an American girl who goes with her newspaper publisher father [Frank Morgan] to England for a two week stay, marries a baronet [Alan Marshall], and never returns to her native land. She loses her husband in the first World war and her son dies in the second.

Most of the story is depicted in flashback as the heroine, then a Red Cross nurse, waits for a large consignment of wounded—among whom she is to discover her own boy. . . .

This is, for the most part, a heartbreaking movie. But it is shot thru with gleaming humor and tender romance. You've seldom watched a sweeter love story unfold than that of new and old England as personified by Miss Dunne and Mr. Marshall.

The former's is an exacting, many faceted role, and Miss Dunne interprets it with both delicacy and fire. You will greatly approve of Mr. Marshall. He is handsome, intuitive, and acts with reticence which still has spontaneity. Frank Morgan is a darb as the father, and C. Aubrey Smith, as an aged colonel, gives one of his highly polished and very canny impersonations. . . . Roddy McDowall is appealingly there as the little son who does not want to go to his mother's country but would carry on in England after family tradition. . . . Other roles are beautifully handled.

The scene that moved me most was the one in which our American boys marched thru London's streets some 25 years ago. Our grand, gallant American boys! Then—and again—to spill their blood on foreign soil. . . .

"God will never forgive us if again we break faith with our dead. . . ."

Would one dare commit the sacriledge of praying for forgiveness?

Y. W. Golf Party.

Opening a series of summer Sunday outings, the Chicago Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring a golf party tomorrow, beginning at 10 a. m., at the Big Oaks Golf club.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

Opening shutout bids have extraordinary value against players who are weak in "partnership coöperation."

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 spades	Double	Pass	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

West would have gone down two tricks, 500 points, at his three spade doubled contract. Actually, however, South went down six tricks, for a 1,700 point penalty, at his absurd contract of four hearts.

This swing of 2,200 points was 2 per cent North's fault and 98 per cent South's. North's slight guilt lay in the fact that he had doubled three spades. He could hope to defeat that contract if South had even a smattering of strength, but his singleton heart was a warning that South might decide to take out the double to four hearts.

South's enormous guilt consisted of having made a bid that was, first, entirely illogical, and second, criminally dangerous. South's three kings in balanced distribution constituted excellent defense against three spades, whereas his shortness in hearts [and clubs] meant that a takeout of the optional double at the four level would be nothing but a shot in the dark. Later, South explained that he had been afraid that West would make his bid and go game and rubber. Apparently he ignored the fact that even if this happened, it would not be the worst fate that could befall his own team.

The Inbetween Age Child Has Large Appetite

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I suppose you have heard old-fashioned grandmothers say that children around 9 and 10 eat so much they must have hollow legs.

I am sure if you are a mother of an inbetween child, your ears must ring with the repeated refrain: "Mom, when do we eat?"

When legs begin to get long, topped by an almost baby face, when roller skates, baseballs, bikes, incessant activity, and outdoors sharpen the appetite, there seem to be unbelievable voids to be filled by food—and more food.

After young childhood is passed, most children become more conscious of food, partly because they feel the need of it; and much of their food fussiness disappears. With any sort of good earlier training and the right kind of eating habits by the family as it gathers round the table, boys and girls at 9 and 10, more or less, should be eating and enjoying almost everything that comes on the table.

The important thing at this stage is for you not to relax in regard to what you set before them. We must, all thru childhood, keep in mind that it isn't enough for our children to look well and gain gradually in weight. They must have what are the right foods for all their bodily needs: these bodily needs which we know exist but cannot see. We must supply their invisible food needs as well as their visible ones. In that way we are helping them not only to physical health but to mental and emotional health, since these things are tied up more closely than even the nutrition scientists can know.

To supply all these visible and invisible needs, we have today a pretty good idea of what a balanced diet is. And it's not a tricky or complex thing to achieve. The protective and the energy foods, in fact, the wholesome array, is covered if we have fruits, vegetables, milk, cereals and breads [not of the denatured flours] in abundance, and then meat, fish, eggs, nuts, and simple sweets.

Picnic Program Planned.

The Outdoor Physical Fitness club will have a picnic Tuesday in Jackson park. The day's program will include softball and other games and swimming.

Child's Frock

This diminutive frock for the little daughter of the family is easy to cut, sew, and keep looking fresh. The remnant counters should yield some smart wisps of cotton fabric for this dainty little model. Style No. 3533 is designed for sizes 2 to 8. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 35 inch fabric with 1¾ yards of edging.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring and summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Family's Love Rewards Ideal Foster Mother

A love for children is the only requirement necessary to be an ideal foster mother, says Mrs. Morris Proger, 4402 Fulton st. And Mrs. Proger should know, for the title of Chicago's typical and ideal foster mother was conferred on her yesterday by the United Home Finding service, the agency which is seeking homes for 4,000 neglected and dependent children this year.

Mrs. Proger has been sharing her home for the last 22 years with 13 children, wards of various social agencies, who needed a home and the care of substitute parents. The home itself is not lavish, but it has provided a healthful and homelike atmosphere in which the boys and girls developed into good citizens. Only two of the 13 remain at home now, Marvin, 11, and Ruth, 15. Two boys, Adolph, 26, and Robert, 23, are in service.

"Any woman who opens her heart and home to such unfortunate boys and girls will receive the same reward I did, that of untold pleasure and happiness," Mrs. Proger said.

Mrs. Proger was awarded a $50 war bond yesterday at a ceremony held at Treasury center. The bond was presented by Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the citizens' committee of the Home Finding service, who explained the search for the typical mother was conducted by the Home Finding service in order to honor all women who share their homes with unfortunate youngsters.

Adolph, wearing the blue of the United States navy, was on hand to see his foster mother honored. He paid homage to the care and love received in the home by saying, "I'm glad to be her foster son."

What about Mr. Proger? He closed up his cleaning and pressing business yesterday to see his wife proclaimed Chicago's typical foster mother. "We've had a fine family," was all he would say. "It's been a privilege to provide a home for these boys and girls."

Kitchen Pointers

"What kind of fish can be boiled? I would like to cook fish in this way for the children occasionally and am not quite sure how to proceed."

Lean fish is preferable, as it tends to stay firmer than fat fish. The leaner fish are bass, bluefish, carp, cod, flounder, haddock, perch, pickerel, red snapper, sheepshead, sole, sturgeon, and swordfish. Use small whole fish or thick slices of larger fish and proceed as follows: Wrap fish in cheesecloth or cooking parchment paper or lay the pieces in an oiled wire basket. Immerse in water just below the boiling point. Add 1 tablespoon salt and ⅛ tablespoon lemon juice to each quart of water. If desired, add sliced onion, parsley, celery, carrots, or bay leaf for extra flavor. Bring water quickly to boiling, then reduce the heat and cook very gently [hard boiling breaks the flesh] until meat is tender, about 6 to 10 minutes per pound. Serve with a parsley or mock hollandaise sauce.

"Is canning without sugar recommended?"

Fruits canned without sugar do not hold their color and flavor as well as sweetened fruit. However, spoilage is not likely to occur if the fruit is processed in the boiling water bath to insure sterilization.

"Can baking powder biscuits be prepared ahead of time and baked several hours later?"

Yes, if the biscuits are stored in the refrigerator to retard the baking powder's action. It is best to use a double action baking powder, for with this type only part of the carbon dioxide gas [the leavening agent] is lost when mixed with the liquid. The other part is released when in contact with the oven heat.

'One Is Missing' . . . . . By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

SYNOPSIS: Camouflaged for jungle warfare, Capt. Jed Reed calls to his companion, Bart, a giant clad in loin cloth, and a man of unusual intelligence. A white man is approaching. Jed knocks him out, rifles his pockets, and finds he is Hurb Wescott St. John, engineer, London, Manila, and Hong Kong. In his wallet is a snapshot of a woman and child, and $900 in American money. They decide he is all right, return his belongings, revive him, and inform him, he is on the Malayan archipelago, St. John returns to a smashed airplane and tells his adventures to Tom Riddell and Richard Cary, pilots: Scott Banning, his wife, Ellen, and Mae Nolan, whose dancing partner was killed in the crash. Jed is unsympathetic, and curious as to how they shall die. At the fall of Manila, Mae and Jimmy Taylor were thrown into a concentration camp, from which Scott Banning pulled an escape, taking them along. They were met in Borneo by Riddell and Cary, with an airplane. Supposedly on their way to China, they crashed. Scott expects to buy his way out of the jungle but Jed assures him escape from Malaya is virtually impossible, as they are surrounded by Japanese. Jed, son of a missionary, whose life has been spent in the South seas, attended officers' training school in the United States and was commissioned. As a demolitions expert, most of his fighting was done behind the lines—blowing up bridges, roads, storage and munitions dumps. He was twice decorated. With a price on his head he left the Phillipines. Jed offers to share the wrecked schooner that he and Bart occupy.

DANGERS OF JUNGLE.

"Yes," said Jed, smiling, "my father was a missionary. A grand man he was, too. So, you see, I was raised in the South seas. I know something about them. I became a trader even before my parents died, knocking around in the islands, picking up a little money here and there. I liked the life. The schooner we're going to, used to be mine. I was mostly after pearls and shell, but did some trading in copra. Bart was my first mate, before he went off to college in the states."

"Odd sort, isn't he?"

"Not so odd, no. He has a good university training and an unusual amount of intelligence, that's all. You see, we were raised together. His parents were among my father's earliest converts. As a child, he was the only playmate I ever knew. We liked each other and later on, well, we just stuck together. Altho we were separated at the fall of Bataan, I managed to get out of the mess and made my way south in a torpedo boat with some navy men. They had to return and dumped me at an island not far from here."

"Then how did you get together?"

Jed smiled. "The two of us are well known in this region. I heard from the natives that Bart was over here in our wrecked schooner and thought I could help him get out. Made my way over in sampans. We've been trapped ever since. But this Banning——"

"O, yes. Well, he is one of the biggest financiers in America. Has his hands in everything, steel, oil, rubber, automobiles, and lately, airplanes."

"Sure. Now I place him. Banning pursuits and bombers."

St. John nodded. "Yes. A big plant, tremendous organization, but he sold mostly in export. The only good German radial is a Banning product. The Japanese Mitsui pursuit, also, is about 99 per cent Banning."

"I have had to dodge strafing Mitsuis hundreds of times. And so he's the man who manufactured them."

"Not exactly the Mitsui itself. Banning sold the plans and a test model to the Japs and they made the necessary modifications to suit their own purposes with the assistance of Banning engineers."

"Yes, of course. Riddell worked for him?"

St. John looked puzzled. "But that is where we were headed."

"That's what you thought, mister. Figure it out yourself. The Chinese have been taking a pounding from Mitsuis for the last couple of years. Banning made the plane available to the Japs and Riddell test-flew it for them. Now you picture what would happen to the two of them if they fell into the hands of the Chinese."

St. John's eyes became round. "Jove! I hadn't thought of that. Then where in the deuce were we going?"

"That's what I mean to find out."

When the others reached them, Ellen and Mae sat wearily upon their suitcases, too exhausted to talk. He had actually forgotten what American women looked like, their beauty, their long clean limbs, their lack of self-consciousness, and the frank, open way they regarded a man.

He studied Mae and Ellen, the enormous differences between them, and yet, contradictorily, the undoubted similarity. Ellen was easily the more beautiful of the two. Even the jungle, washing out all artificialities, would not alter her beauty. It was within her and it was the immediate atmosphere about her.

Mae, on the other hand, could have been one of the thousands of young women daily walking the streets in the states. Her deep auburn hair and green eyes would set her slightly apart, but not enough so to make her outstanding.

But of the two, he thought, Mae's character was more finely tempered and honest. A man could never be sure where he stood with Ellen. Mae would tell you to your face bluntly and frankly.

Jed felt a chuckle welling within him and stifled it. The two women obviously disliked and distrusted each other. Ellen would regard Mae as "that cheap dancer," and Mae would appraise Ellen as "that snob."

Jed looked away from them and his jaws hardened. The jungle. Neither of them could stand up under its ferocious savagery. He would watch the two of them die, slowly, like wax placed too close to a fire.

Mae looked up and attempted a smile. "You don't mind if we rest for just a minute, do you?"

Twin lights appeared in Jed's eyes and he pointed to the trunk of a thick tree about 30 feet away. "King Cobra. Fairly large one. Beautiful devil, isn't he?"

The women jumped to their feet and all of them stared at the tree. It was some time before they could distinguish the enormous snake in the jungle foliage, and then only when he moved. Ellen Banning's hand went to her mouth to suppress a scream and Mae closed her eyes.

Jed said, "You've passed by dozens of them. But at this time of day the sun makes them lazy. I wouldn't advise any one to fall behind too far or get ahead of me. A good sized tiger has been stalking us all morning. I would say that right now he is somewhere near that tree. That's why the snake moved."

Banning's face paled and the cigar fell from his mouth. "Will—will he attack?"

"Not unless he's hungry, which I doubt. Lone Jap sentries keep them pretty well fed. Uh—shall we get going?"

"By all means."

Jed again started along the trail, the Springfield held lightly in the crook of his arm and his other hand never swinging far from the bag of grenades. Banning puffed along close at his side and Ellen and Mae walked with St. John, hard on Jed's heels.

When they came in sight of the sea, crossing another clearing that sloped down an easy ridge, Jed slowed his stride and glanced back at the women. They smiled gratefully at him, but there was no response in his cold eyes.

He turned to Banning and said, "That's the gulf of Siam before you. Down here you'll see the broken bones of ships and smashed tanks and guns, paving a road down the coast to Singapore. And you'll see another thing, the backwash of a war. Small, wandering bands of natives, half crazed, starving, and defeated at last by the jungle. It gets them all."

"Just a few elemental facts. On this coast all of your millions aren't worth a square meal. You and your pilots made a mistake in your choice of landing places."

PROGRAM DRAWN TO MAKE U. OF I. AVIATION LEADER

Willard Lists Objectives University Seeks.

The final phase in the planning of a comprehensive program of aeronautical training and research, designed to make the University of Illinois the leader in the field, was launched yesterday by the university's aviation advisory board at a meeting in the University club.

The board, composed of seven nationally known persons connected with various aspects of aviation and related fields, began blocking out a multitude of special courses which the university expects to offer during the coming year. The board will grade the importance of the many research problems confronting the aviation industry, and assign them to departments of the university.

Teacher Training Started.

Details of the program will not be completed until late summer altho a number of subjects, particularly the training of high school teachers to teach the technical aspects of aviation to high school students, are being offered during the present summer term.

The university's new 763 acre airport, the largest owned by any school and big enough to accommodate any military or civilian plane now in the air, is expected to be ready for use by Nov. 1. It is located five miles southwest of the Champaign campus.

Arthur Cutts Willard, university president, listed six broad objectives the new school hopes to accomplish: [1] Provide training in the design, construction, and production of all types of airplanes and airports; [2] Develop research personnel; [3] Provide teacher-training programs in aviation for high school teachers; [4] Investigate the social, economic, and political implications of aviation; [5] Provide flight instruction for qualified students under the Reserve Officer's Training corps program; [6] Provide a laboratory for military research.

Degrees to Be Awarded.

The university courses, President Willard said, will be open to all qualified students and a special degree in aeronautics probably will be conferred for advanced study in the school. Pilots and crewmen who already have received military air training will be able to receive advanced training under the program.

Members of the advisory board are Dr. Baldwin M. Woods, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of California; Comdr. Allan F. Bonnalie, formerly vice president of operations of the United Air Lines; Dr. Bruce Uthus, director of the education service of the civil aeronautics administration; W. J. Blanchard, general manager of the Aeroproducts division of the General Motors corporation; Col. A. D. Tuttle, medical director of the United Air Lines; L. R. Inwood, executive assistant of the Transcontinental and Western Airlines, and A. E. Smith, chief engineer of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft corporation.

THE QUESTION.

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Dorothy Teron, packer, 2430 Chicago av.—If I can get it I use olive oil before and after I've been in the sun. After I come out of the water I wait until my skin dries then put on more olive oil. Nothing seems to do me much good, tho, if I'm foolish enough to stay in the sun too long.

Duncan Mackintosh, artist, 18 W. Chestnut st.—When I was a kid my mother used to rub vinegar on my back and arms if I came home from the beach sunburned. It seemed to take the sting out of it. Now when I get burned, I rub some salve or solution on the bad spots. I feel better to have done something for it.

Carmel McKeown, student, 3166 Pine Grove av.—When I'm sunburned, I mix some baking powder and water into a paste. Then I rub it all over and leave it on until it rubs off. I don't know whether it does any good or not, but it takes burns out of your fingers so I thought it might work for sunburn.

Dick Seargeant, musician, Knickerbocker hotel—A solution I prepared myself usually does the trick for me. I fill a bottle about two-thirds full of olive oil and one-third vinegar. Then I put in a few drops of iodine to give it color. I use it before and after I'm burned. It's not scientific or authentic, but it's my old standby.

Jeanne Veenstra, cadet nurse, 229 W. 110th pl.—Lately I haven't gotten burned. I guess I know when to come in out of the sun. The last time I was burned I put sour milk on my back. It had a cooling effect. I suppose the reason I used sour milk instead of sweet milk is that sweet milk would run off, but sour milk sticks.

Roberta Van Wormer, ticket agent, 185 E. Chestnut st.—When I'm at the beach I never use any oil, grease or lotion. If I find when I come home that my skin is starting to turn red and hurts a little, I rub vinegar all over. It takes the sting and heat right out for me, and I turn a nice shade of tan.

KILLS PLAYMATE, BURIES HIS BODY, BOY, 14, ADMITS

Tells Police He Was Shooting Crows.

St. Joseph, Mich., June 30 (AP).—Lee Johnson, 14 year old Niles, Mich., boy, has admitted, according to Sheriff Al Hastings and Prosecutor Karl Zick of Berrien county, that he shot and killed his playmate, Clair Blanta, 13, at Niles late last Saturday afternoon and buried his body in a shallow grave.

The Johnson boy said he was shooting at crows with a .22 caliber rifle when he accidentally hit his companion, Prosecutor Zick said. An inquest and autopsy were ordered by Zick.

No Charge Is Entered.

No charge has been placed against the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Niles. Sheriff Hastings said Juvenile court had not yet waived jurisdiction.

Sheriff Hastings quoted the boy as saying that when the Blanta boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Blanta, fell, Johnson became panicky, tossed his rifle into some bushes and fled. Later, Hastings said, the Johnson boy told him he returned to the scene, dragged the body 60 or 70 feet, scooped out a shallow grave into which he placed the body and covered it with earth.

The youth admitted the purchase of the rifle but told Peterson he had hidden it "in the woods because my mother did not want me to have a gun," the officer said.

The captain dug at a spot where the gun was supposed to be hidden and uncovered the body.

MINISTERS FAIL TO SHOW UP AT TAVERN HEARING

Eight ministers of Western Springs and La Grange recently complained to the Illinois liquor control commission that taverns in their communities were selling liquor to minors, but when a tavernkeeper was brought to trial not one of the preachers appeared to testify altho twice notified to be there.

This was revealed yesterday by Dr. Joseph C. Ross, member of the commission, who severely criticised the ministers.

"Juvenile delinquency is one of our most acute problems today," Dr. Ross commented. "All of us are interested in doing everything possible to lessen it as much as possible."

The preachers were the Reverends Irving Noddard, Emanuel Episcopal church; Emmerson O. Moser, First Presbyterian church; O. V. Anderson, Grace Lutheran church; Wilbur C. Christians, La Grange Baptist church; John Edward Fellible, First Congregational church; William J. O'Brien, St. Francis Xavier Catholic church; H. DEATH IN CHAIR KRAUSE PENALTY FOR 2D SLAYING

Alvin Krause, 29, who is under a life sentence for the holdup murder of a woman currency exchange cashier, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Harold G. Ward in Criminal court to die Sept. 15 in the electric chair at the county jail for the murder of a real estate operator in another currency exchange holdup.

A jury of ten women and two men convicted Krause June 16 and fixed his punishment at death for the murder of Walter Bush, 51, who had offices in a currency exchange at 5151 S. Kedzie av. The holdup murder occurred June 19, 1943.

After sentencing, Krause said he was dissatisfied with the work of Public Defenders Lester Grossman and Joseph Gannon. He said they would not let him say what he wished. Judge Ward held he had been ably represented. Grossman said the death sentence would be appealed.

Krause is under a life prison term for the poison gas murder last July 3 of Miss Agnes Olson, 54, cashier in a currency exchange at 311 N. Pulaski rd.

26,000 TRUCKERS HOLD OFF STRIKE AT WLB REQUEST

The threatened strike of 26,000 interstate truck drivers in seven midwestern states was postponed last night a few hours before it was to have gone into effect.

Thomas E. Flynn, executive assistant to the president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL], said the postponement was ordered pending a war labor board hearing in Washington, D. C., next Thursday. The strike had been ordered by the AFL central states drivers' council in protest against the refusal of 113 operator-employers to grant a wage increase awarded by the national war labor board.

The employers, organized as the Midwest Operators' association, were cited yesterday by the WLB to explain July 6 why they have not complied with the wage boost order. At the same time the WLB asked the drivers to postpone their threatened strike pending outcome of the hearing, and the request was honored.

MR. HAMBURGER FINDS UNION HAS HIM SANDWICHED

Louis Hamburger, proprietor of the Bell Sandwich Shop, 115 E. Garfield blvd., who has always insisted that the reputation of his shop live up to his name, yesterday found his restaurant had become sandwiched between two rival unions. When Louis looked out of the front window he discovered a picket carrying a sandwich sign which proclaimed fore and aft that the shop was unfair to the United Liquor and Food Service Employes' union [CIO]. Louis held a hasty roll call among his seven employes and placed a card in the show window stating the establishment was fair to members of the Bartenders, Waitresses and Waiters' union. The meat of the whole thing, Mr. Hamburger discovered, was that one of his waitresses had joined the CIO union at the suggestion of its president, Warren Goodgame.

JUDGE ORDERS 2 BANKS TO OBEY NLRB'S DEMAND

Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday ordered the Northern Trust company and the American National Bank and Trust company to produce certain records before a trial examiner of the national labor relations board as required in labor board's hearing on the petition of the Protective Service Employes of Chicago, local 240. The union charges the two banks refuse to recognize them as representative of guards employed at the banks. The banks contended they were not engaged in interstate commerce and thus did not come under the jurisdiction of the labor board.

U. S. JUDGES BAN FINGER PRINTS IN JUVENILE CASES

William H. McDonnell, United States marshal, and his deputies, have been ordered by the federal judges of the northern district of Illinois to cease finger printing juveniles arrested on federal charges until the juveniles have been convicted.

This was disclosed yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, who dismissed a ruling against the government after the finger prints of David Joseph Hearne Jr., 15, of 8212 Woodlawn av., had been turned over to Atty. Herbert J. Deany in behalf of the family.

Young Hearne was found not guilty several months ago on a charge of sending a threatening letter thru the mails demanding money from a neighbor. At the time the court ruled the government had no evidence against the youth and that his finger print records should be destroyed.

Marshal McDonnell said he had been finger printing all federal prisoners on orders of the attorney general's office. The banning of finger printing of juveniles was proposed to the federal judges by Judge Sullivan.

THIRD WARMEST JUNE IN HISTORY OF CITY PASSES

June was the third warmest June in the history of weather bureau records, Forecaster O. T. Lay reported yesterday. The mean temperature was 73 degrees, compared with a normal mean temperature of 68.1 degrees.

There were 12 days when the temperature reached 90 degrees or above, with an all-time high for the month of 100 degrees on June 27. The average annual quota of days of 90 degrees or over usually amounts only to 11 days.

July, which is considered the hottest month of the year, usually has a normal mean temperature of 72.7 degrees, the forecaster said.

ADJOURN BRIBE TRIAL AFTER A STORMY SESSION

Mason, Mich., June 30 [Special].—Judge John Simpson today adjourned until Wednesday the trial of 22 defendants charged with a 1939 legislative graft conspiracy after a court session marked by much bickering among counsel, indicating frayed tempers resulting from three weeks of steady work, much of it so tedious and trivial that the court has frequently warned defense attorneys against repetitious questioning.

Judge Simpson at one time today threatened to call off the four day holiday adjournment in an effort to discipline Walter Nelson, Detroit, one of the 14 defense lawyers who had been conducting cross examination of Ralph W. Smith, Niles finance company operator, a prosecution witness.

Among exhibits entered in evidence today was a letter allegedly from Smith to defendant Abraham Cooper, president of the Union Investment company, Detroit, in which Smith stated he had "spent a lot of time and money lately trying to lick this thing in Lansing," and was "pretty well worn out and discouraged," and that it had "cost our little company a lot of money."

HENRI CHARPENTIER'S Column

A lot of noise and a lot of perspiration are unnecessary in these hot days. Each American is entitled to his politics. But this year the political parties should unite and under one banner fight to preserve our country—the life of America is more important than any individual party. "United we stand, divided we fall." Remember the 4th of July, 1776! There was only one thought then, "Our country comes first." The same with our boys who are fighting on many fronts, their only thought is, "Victory and then home!" Let's make less noise, forget politics, purchase more bonds and say, "God bless America." NELSON TAKES 2 STROKE OPEN LEAD WITH 65

NAME FIELD OF 10 FOR $39,040 LASSIE STAKES

Lineup for Lassie

TEN 2 year old fillies were named overnight to compete in the Arlington Lassie stakes, to be contested over six furlongs today at Washington Park for a purse of $15,000 added. The field in order of post position follows:

	Wt.	Rider.	Prob. odds.
Twosy	119	No boy	8-5
Monsoon	119	Groba	5-1
Expression	119	F. Zufelt	6-1
Lillyice	116	No boy	10-1
Blue Skimmer	119	A. Bodiou	8-5
Surosa	119	J. Gilbert	3-1
Delphi	119	N. Jemas	5-1
Blue Alibi	116	C. Corbett	15-1
Cross Bayou	116	C. Wahler	15-1
Antaxia	116	L. Haas	12-1

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The $15,000 added Arlington Lassie stakes, one of the most important events of the year for juvenile debutantes of the turf, has drawn a field of 10 for the 16th running of the race today at Washington Park. The affair, sixth on the Arlington Park program, will have a gross value of $39,040 and the winner's share will be $30,420, richest plum ever offered since the inaugural in 1929.

triumph in the Lassie as it sends the brilliant Twosy postward to repeat the performance last year of Twilight Tear, now rated the champion 3 year old filly of 1944. Twosy, like Twilight Tear, is a daughter of the Calumet sire, Bull Lea.

Opposes Blue Skimmer.

The race also will bring Twosy and Dr. Edie Asbury's Blue Skimmer together in a renewal of the battle they had in the Miss Dogwood purse, which resulted in the suspension of the Calumet farm's jockey, Conn McCreary, for grabbing Al Bodiou, Blue Skimmer's rider. Twosy beat Blue Skimmer by inches, only to be disqualified.

Twosy no doubt will be the public choice when the field is called to the post for the six furlong test, sixth race on the card, but contention from the east comes from the Kentucky-breds of the Whitney family, Greentree farm's Expression, Col. C. V. Whitney's Monsoon, and the Foxcatcher farm's Surosa, which finished third to Twosy and Blue Skimmer in the Miss Dogwood.

Son of Peace Claimed.

A crowd of 12,000 saw Son of Peace, winner of $26,400 in stakes last year, claimed by C. U. Yaeger of Denver, Colo., after the Calumet horse had won the first race, a $1,500 claiming event. Thirteen other claims had been filed. Mrs. William Causey's Golden Cross won the second race at $4.80 and the daily double refund was only $13.40.

Happy Issue, owned by the Happy stable of California and ridden by the veteran Steve Brooks, upset the form in the $4,000 Clang handicap, the featured race, and beat C. U. Yaeger's Corona Corona, the favorite, by a nose in a three horse finish which included T. D. Grimes' With Regards. Happy Issue, a star of the Bay Meadows meeting, paid $22, $8.60, and $5.40. Corona Corona returned $4 and $2.60 and With Regards paid $5.

A new track record of 2:33 2-5 for a mile and a half on the turf course was set by Starcress of the Chicago owned Happy Hour farm in the seventh race.

Twilight Tear Joins Charity Racing Stars

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Twilight Tear, Warren Wright's great filly, which scored her eighth straight victory in the Princess Doreen stakes last Wednesday, joined her stablemates, Pensive and Sun Again, in the parade of the great horses of the American turf on the Chicago Tribune Charities program next week at Washington Park. Wright's plan to give charity week's spectators a look at Twilight Tear was revealed yesterday in the announcement of entries for Thursday's $10,000 Skokie handicap.

Sun Again and Pensive have been entered in the $50,000 Stars and Stripes on Independence day. Thus Chicago race fans will see the top notch handicap horse of the country, Sun Again; the strongest claimant for the 3 year old championship, Pensive, and the undisputed queen of the 3 year old fillies Twilight Tear.

Pensive Also Listed.

Pensive also is listed in the Skokie handicap and this circumstance gives rise to considerable speculation about Trainer Ben Jones' strategy. Many believe that Jones has entered Pensive along with Sun Again in the Stars and Stripes to protect against all eventualities. While Jones probably is not adverse to matching these great horses to insure collection of Tuesday's purse, it's understood he's not particularly anxious for a showdown between his filly and Pensive until considerably later in the season.

Twilight Tear originally would have been shown Monday in the Top Flight purse, but the race didn't fill after Calumet farm's decisive victory in the Doreen, and Webb Everett, Arlington Park's racing secretary, made substitution.

Wright accordingly altered his plans to make the five days of charity racing—one day has been given by each of Chicago's tracks from Monday thru Friday—worthy of the cause.

McCreary's Wrist in Cast.

Conn McCreary, contract rider for Calumet farm and the leading stakes winning jockey of the season, will not perform during charity week. McCreary sustained a fractured right wrist yesterday morning while entroute to Washington Park. It was reported at St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, where McCreary was taken, that the wrist had been put in a cast.

McCreary was up on Twilight in her last race and he would have had a mount in the Stars and Stripes. Trainer Jones did not name a boy to ride Twosy when the entries were made for tomorrow's Lassie stakes which will have an approximate value of $40,000. It is expected that F. A. Smith will get the assignement.

ILLINOIS REAPS $569,321 FROM LINCOLN RACES

Revenue to the state of Illinois from the recent 28 day Lincoln Fields meeting at Hawthorne amounted to $569,321.92, the Illinois racing board announced yesterday. A total of $21,483,726 was wagered, an increase of $7,097,553 (or 33.4 per cent) over the 1943 figures for 30 days of racing.

There was an increase of 66,363 in attendance as 360,224 admissions were recorded as against 293,861 last year.

The entire net proceeds of the day's racing on Memorial day were turned over to war relief agencies. A total of $104,657.12 was realized, and of this amount $69,771.41 was given to the Red Cross and $34,885.71 to the Chicago service men's center.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

WHEN Bob Hooey, sports editor of the Ohio State Journal, purchased a rural home, he erected a roadside mail box. . . . Then he found out that the mailman's route stops short two-tenths of a mile away and that the government can do nothing about it until after the war. . . . So Bob painted his favorite slogan on the mail box: "Beat Michigan!" . . . The naval aviation training school at Ohio State U. has named its field Don Scott field in honor of the famous Buckeye back, who died in the crash of his army airplane in England. . . . Dick Wakefield, the Iowa pre-flight school cadet who made his batting mark in the American league last year, says his proudest possession is a trophy received for being voted the most valuable player in the Texas league in 1942 when he was with Beaumont. . . . Les Scarsella, former Giant and Red first baseman who has been playing the same position for Oakland, took a turn as relief pitcher the other day and made such an impression Manager Dolph Camilli now has him listed as a regular starter. . . . In 1935 San Francisco's Seals won the Pacific Coast league team batting title with a .305 percentage. . . . Since that time the averages have been receding gradually until last season Los Angeles took the crown with .281. . . . The name Valdina, which forms the front half of the names of more than 400 race horses, is a contraction of two Texas counties—Uvalde and Medinah. . . . The late Emerson F. Woodward submitted a list of names of yearlings to the Jockey club years ago but some were rejected because they duplicated the names of other thoroughbreds in the last 20 years. . . . So Woodward prefixed them all with Valdina. . . .

Lt. Larry French, the former Cub and Dodger, is believed to have been in on the invasion. . . . Paul Robeson Jr., son of the former Rutgers All-American and singer, is an athlete too. . . . Altho only 17 years old, the boy won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 3 inches; took the shot put, and placed second in the broad jump in a prep meet. . . . Speaking of unusual war time baseball schedules, the Sacramento club made its first appearance in Hollywood after the Pacific Coast league season was 10 weeks old. . . . Davis York, younger brother of Rudy, pitched a no-hit softball game for a sailor nine at Newport News, Va. . . . One of the most frequent queries on sports department phones is: "If a runner is hit by a batted ball while standing on a base, is he out?" . . . The answer, of course, is yes, but said player should be fined at least 50 bucks for being in a trance while the ball is in play.

Gold Star Mother.

I looked for signs of grief, I thought
Because she lost her son,
That she might weep when they'd present
The medals he had won.

Instead, she took them smilingly
And kept her proud head high;
She spoke her thanks with seeming ease,
Her eyes were clear and dry.

But when I saw the tightened fist,
White-knuckled at her side,
I knew her heart was wracked with pain . . .
And it was I who cried.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With one swish of his bat yesterday Andy Pafko accomplished what eight other Cubs and nine Brooklyn Dodgers hadn't been able to do thru eight and a fraction innings. The Los Angeles graduate knocked the ball over the Wrigley field barriers with two out in the ninth to break up a 0 to 0 pitching duel, give the Cubs a sweep of the three-game series with Leo Durocher's outfit, and also the fourth success in a row for the Chicagoans. The score was 2 to 0 and, incidentally, it was the Cubs' seventh victory in 10 meetings with Brooklyn.

Until the youthful Pafko swaggered into the picture, all had been serene between Bill Fleming, who started for the Cubs because of Claude Passeau's infirmities, and Ed Head, whose 1944 labors were represented by four victories. The two right handers went at it pitch for pitch from the very start, their efforts being so distressing for the batters that only five Cub hits had been recorded in eight innings and the Dodgers wound up with an embarrassing total of three.

Nicholson Finally Hits One.

The setting for Pafko's knockout punch was arranged by Bill Nicholson. Bill hadn't had a very pleasant time in the preceding innings. He filed out once with two mates on bases, fanned once with two on, and also fanned once with the bases bare. But, with one out in the ninth, he slipped a single into right field and Dom Dallessandro followed with a harmless fly. Then Pafko, after ignoring a slow strike, took hold and slammed his drive into the wind, the ball hitting the left field bleacher railing for his third homer of the season and Fleming's second victory.

Fleming's elbowing was so fancy that real trouble never caught up with him. A pass and a single put two Dodgers on in the first inning, but two were out and getting away from this possible jam proved easy. That was the only time more than one lone, disconsolate Dodger was performing as a base runner and, of the few who survived after the opening inning, only one reached second. That was Augie Galan, who doubled with two out in the sixth, and this might have been damaging if Don Johnson hadn't made a fancy running pickup of Paul Waner's speedy shot.

Fade Out in First Inning.

Like Fleming, Head also had to contend with two base runners in the first inning. Roy Hughes singled with one out and Phil Cavarretta surprised the enemy with a bunt. But this was where Nicholson flied out and Dallessandro closed the session with another fly. A single and pass put the same two Cubs on bases in the third, but with two gone and this was concluded with one of Nicholson's strikeouts. From this point to the ninth, only three Cubs reached base and none of the three got to second.

BOSTON BATTERS WHITE SOX, 11-0, FOR TENTH IN ROW

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 30.—The second place Red Sox in making it 10 shoveovers in 10 tries in their 1944 competition with the White Sox, this evening were far more emphatic than need be when they poured it on our distraught and panicked lads, 11 to 0, in the twilight final of the series here.

There were moments, just before the shadowy encounter began, when it appeared Manager Joe Cronin was trying to give Manager Jimmy Dykes a chance to get his shoulder blades off the mat. Against the carefully conserved Chicago ace, Bill Dietrich, held off a couple of days for the arrival of cool weather, Cronin sent forth Oscar Judd, sore armed lefty who had made only two starts this season and who tossed only two pitches in his last previous start two weeks ago. He also permitted veterans Bob Johnson and Jim Tabor, to take a rest.

It's All Over in First.

The Red Sox didn't stick to the chance giving theme. They made five runs in the first inning. Judd's arm collapsed from mere pitching and he retired after five pitches at the start of the third. Yank Terry went in and stood the Sox on their heads while the Red Sox added three more runs off Dietrich in their third inning and three more off Buck Ross in a seven inning blast which included Cronin's fifth homer of the season and his second in two days.

The Chicago Sox shuffled on to New York at midnight and tomorrow afternoon will open a three game series with the third place Yankees, a team they have been able to whip four times in six tries this season. It will be Johnny Humphries against Hank Borowy, according to announcements today.

Clarke's Error Hurts.

Bucher opened the Boston first inning with a single to center and went to third on Metkovich's single to right. Fox sent a hot one straight at Clarke, but the plump third baseman was too eager for a double play and kicked the ball, Bucher scoring, Metkovich stopping at second and Fox reaching first on the error. Doerr sacrificed and Cronin was given an intentional walk, the first pass issued by Dietrich in 27 innings. Dietrich also passed McBride, forcing Metkovich across the plate. Wagner bounced to Schalk, Fox scoring, then Newsome singled, scoring Cronin and McBride.

At the start of the home third Doerr was given credit for a single when his easy grounder went between Clarke's heels into left field. Cronin singled to left. McBride bunted to Clarke, who threw wide to first. The error enabled the Red Sox to load the bases. Wagner walked, forcing Doerr across the plate. Newsome fouled to Castino, then Terry forced Wagner, Cronin scoring. Bucher then delivered his third hit in three innings, a single which scored McBride.

Segura Meets Samson Today for Net Title

Francisco [Pancho] Segura, the two-handed swinger from the University of Miami, approached a step closer in quest of his second consecutive N. C. A. A. tennis championship by defeating hard working Jack Willett of Georgia Tech in yesterday's semi-final match on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Attack Baffles Willett.

The swarthy Ecuadorian, who won the 1943 title on these same courts one year ago, is heavily favored to overpower Charles Samson, naval V-12 trainee from Notre Dame, in today's final match which will get under way at 2 o'clock. Samson gained the final bracket by defeating Harry Likas of Gazaga on Thursday.

As in his three previous matches, Segura utilized superior court generalship and a huge repertoire of shots to vanquish his opponent.

Irish Doubles Team Loses.

Today's final will be followed by the doubles championship match between Nick Buzelich and Gary Ruby of George Pepperdine college and John Hickman and Felix Kelley of Texas. The latter pair entered the finals yesterday by defeating the Notre Dame duo of Charles Samson and Jerry Evert, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. Hickman will be seeking his second straight doubles title. He won the championship last year in partnership with Walter Driver.

JOHN REVOLTA, McSPADEN, AND KOVACH GET 67

Four Others Are Tied at 68.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Byron Nelson, the golfer's golfer who is the man to beat in most any tournament you care to name, yesterday made a slight introductory move in the second Chicago Victory National Open event by taking the first round lead with a sparkling 65. This figure was six under par for the weather blessed yardage of the Edgewater Golf club, and two strokes in front of the select company of 57 professionals and amateurs.

The only unhappy person on the premises about that 65 was Nelson himself, who felt that he might have broken 60 if his putter had clicked. It did account for six birdies, but consider that his tee to green work was so perfect that he putted for nine other birdies and three eagles in the course of his 18 hole chore, and you will realize that the determined young man who has won all there is to win in American golf might have had reason to be somewhat riled. Only once did he stray off a fairway, and that negligible mishap, occurring at the 12th, found his ball kicking about a foot into the rough. He had a 32 on the front nine and closed with a 33.

Edgewater's Revolta Favorite.

Nelson's closest pursuers going into today's second 18 hole assignment of the 72 hole battle consists of a worthy threesome of 67 scorers. They are Johnny Revolta, the Evanston professional to whom Edgewater always has been a kind of cousin; Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia, and Steve Kovach, the 27 year old Pittsburgh steel worker who paced all amateurs thru the first round. Revolta, last to tee off yesterday, proved that his victories in two of the three national team championships decided at Edgewater on Wednesday and Thursday were no flukes by doing up the front nine in 32, the same as Nelson, and then coming home in 35.

McSpaden, Nelson's close friend and the year's leading money winner, played with Byron and will be paired with him again in today's last trio. He had his troubles, but came in with a 33—34—67. Preceding him and Nelson was Kovach, runnerup in the Chicago National Amateur of 1942 and a former U. S. G. A. quarter finalist. Steve had a 34—33—67 that included a mighty eagle at the 469 yard 14th, where he smashed a brassie two inches to the right of the cup.

Sarazen Comes Close on Chip.

Tied at 68 back of the four pacemakers were Sam Bernardi, Old Elm's talented pro; Lt. Ben Hogan of the Fort Worth army air field; Sgt. Ernie [Dutch] Harrison of Wright field, Dayton, O., and Chuck Kocsis, the Detroit amateur who formerly held th eNational Intercollegiate and Western conference titles as a student at the University of Michigan. Gene Sarazen, 42 year old New Yorker, made the best stand of the day for the elders with a 69 in which he almost chipped in on the 18th hole. The 70 brigade included Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., U. S. G. A. Open title holder; Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake; Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and Abe Espinosa of Decatur.

Thirteen broke par during an afternoon as fine as any golf field or gallery could hope to find. The quartet which matched Edgewater's standard of 35—36—71 was headed by Sam Byrd of Detroit, the defending champion. Joined with the former Yankee outfielder were Gene Kunes of Philadelphia, Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y., and Amateur Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis.

Proceeds Go to Veterans.

Proceeds of the five day program being sponsored by the Chicago District Golf association will be directed to the recreational needs of the hospitalized veterans of World War II. The winner of the Open, which will end with 36 holes of play tomorrow, will go home with $3,000 in war bonds.

The cards for Nelson, McSpaden, Kovach, and Revolta follow:

No. 3. He missed a 10 foot try for an eagle at the 493 yard fifth, then holed a three footer to go three under par at the sixth. He rimmed the cup from 30 and 20 feet, respectively, at the seventh and eighth, and missed a nine foot attempt for a bird at No. 9.

His tee shot to the 10th, 150 yards long, went 40 feet beyond the cup, and he had to drop a four footer coming back. He failed to hole 15 and 18 foot efforts for eagles at the 14th and 15th, but pitched within a foot of the flag at the 286 yard 16th. An eight foot try for a bird failed to drop at the 17th, and he missed another from the same distance on the home green.

EX-MATE TAKES HUTTON HEIRESS' SON TO CANADA

Barbara Faces a New Custody Fight.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 30—[Special].—Dime store Heiress Barbara Hutton Grant—who was married to a former foreign count in the United States, separated from him in England and got a Danish divorce—today faced Canadian court litigation in a fight for the custody of her 9 year old son, Lance Haugwitz-Reventlow.

The Woolworth heiress, now married to Actor Cary Grant, was informed by counsel for her former husband, Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, that Lance and his father had left Pasadena, Cal., a week ago and now are somewhere in Canada.

Her Turn to Share Son.

The boy was to have been turned over to the heiress today for the start of her six month custody under a London chancery court order in 1938, splitting the child's care for equal periods during the year.

Announcement that Haugwitz-Reventlow had left the country with the boy followed the former's dismissal by proxy in Superior court here yesterday of his suit, which demanded full custody of the boy on the ground she was not properly caring for him. No reason was given by the ex-count's attorneys for dismissal of the suit, which was filed here May 26, 1944.

Mother Notified by Lawyer.

"Count Reventlow is now in Canada and I am advising Mrs. Grant in writing where she may locate him so that she can make demand for Lance on July 1 if she is so advised," said Joseph L. Lewinson, chief counsel for the former count.

"I may add that Count Reventlow might well refuse to deliver Lance to Mrs. Grant because, as shown in the complaint and supporting affidavits filed here, Mrs. Grant has herself breached her obligations under the English decree. If he should refuse, Mrs. Grant will be at liberty to try out the issues in the Canadian courts."

The attorney said the separation agreement did not require that Lance be kept in California or near his mother.

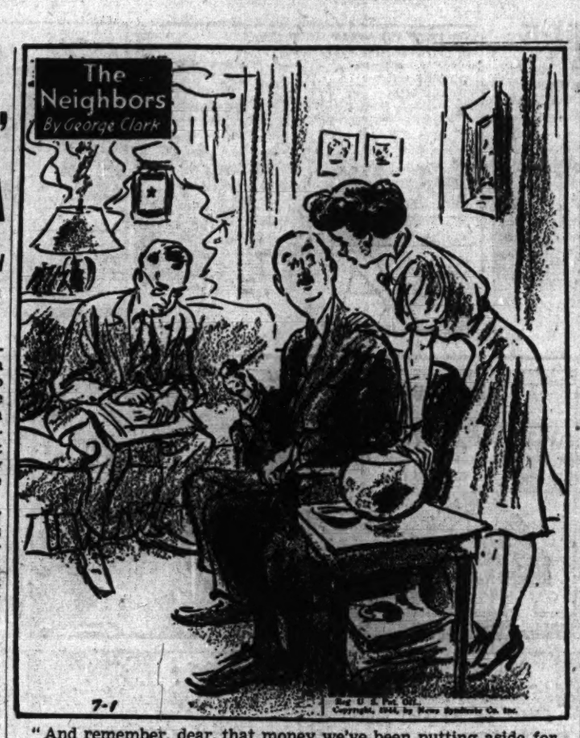
Mrs. Grant Distressed.

Attorneys for Mrs. Grant said she was "very much upset and distressed" when informed that her son had been taken to Canada. They branded the action as "a willful violation and breach of the written agreement between the count and Mrs. Grant and the decree of the high court of justice of England."

Mrs. Grant's attorneys said she had planned to file an action here shortly, seeking complete custody of the boy.

Widow of J. A. Davidson Leaves $647,268 Estate

Mrs. Annie L. Davidson, widow of a wholesale druggist, left an estate of $647,268 when she died Feb. 10, it was disclosed in an inheritance tax report filed yesterday in County court. She was 85 when she died, and was the widow of James A. Davidson. The estate was divided between her son, Albert, of 711 Judson av., Evanston, and her daughter, Mrs. Isabel P. Lawson, of 5356 Sheridan rd. A state inheritance tax of $18,167 and a federal estate tax of $150,000 were paid on the estate.



"And remember, dear, that money we've been putting aside for our twentieth anniversary celebration. If we put that in war bonds we'll have lots more for our thirtieth."

FAKE POLICEMEN ESCAPE U. S. TAX ON EXTORTIONS

Money obtained thru swindling where there was no actual transfer of title is not taxable, Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe ruled yesterday in upholding a defense motion and dismissing income tax evasion charges against two men with long records of arrests as swindlers and extortionists.

The men freed are Lewis E. Downer, 43, and Frank Kogut, 41, who were indicted a year ago on charges of failure to pay taxes for 1938 on income allegedly derived by posing as policemen and then fleecing their victims by frightening them with trumped up morals charges.

Defense Concedes Facts.

Evidence against the two men had been presented in a stipulation of facts which included the testimony of six victims who charged they paid money to Downer and Kogut as "bail" on the trumped up charges against them.

Defense Attorneys George Crane and Luis Kutner conceded the government evidence was right but asked whether money obtained by larceny, fraud, confidence game, and artifice is taxable within the meaning of the internal revenue code.

The defense attorneys argued that at no time did the defendants have legal possession of the money but that their victims had given them the money to be used in their behalf for bail bond purpose.

Expense Angle Raised.

In answer to arguments by John Owen, assistant United States attorney, Judge Igoe said that if he held with the government it would permit the defendants to deduct expenses from their so-called gain.

"If no title was transferred," Judge Igoe ruled, "then this money is not taxable even tho these men are morally and reprehensibly guilty. The court cannot sustain the position of the government but must find for the defendants. The government cannot enter into competition with crimes of this kind."

M. L. FITZGERALD MADE STEINMETZ HIGH PRINCIPAL

Matthew L. Fitzgerald, principal of Shoop Elementary school for the last six years, was named principal of Steinmetz High school in a board of education meeting yesterday after a protest by Mrs. Walter F. Heineman, who refused to vote for or against the appointment recommended by Supt. William H. Johnson.

Mrs. Heineman said Thomas J. Crofts, former principal of Manley High school until it was taken by the navy last January for a training program, should have first call for a high school principalship. James B. McCahey, board president, said he knew neither man personally, but trusted Johnson's judgment in appointments. McCahey added that Crofts' protests against the navy taking the building "were in bad taste."

RISE IN RUNAWAY MARRIAGES LAID TO LAX PARENTS

Runaway marriages by teen age couples out of the control of their parents are responsible for an abnormal increase in the number of annulment petitions filed in Chicago courts, Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro said yesterday.

Judge Sbarbaro granted annulments yesterday to three minors who had been married outside the state without the consent of their parents.

"The minor parties getting the annulments seldom had consulted their parents before they went away to be married," the judge said. "Their marriages usually can be attributed to an apparent complete lack of parental control."

He granted annulments yesterday to Mrs. Helene Gray of 3640 Chicago av., who was married in Van Buren, Ark., on Feb. 28, 1944, when she said she was 18 altho only 15; to Mrs. Lavonne Moore, 16, of 1425 N. Fairfield av., married Feb. 29, 1944, in Albuquerque, N. M., and Carl Anderson of 323 N. Kedzie av., who was married in Palmyra, Mo., in 1942 when he was 16.

12 EX-HUSBANDS IN ALIMONY ROW FREED BY JUDGES

Semi-annual dispensations were granted yesterday to 12 alimony row prisoners, who promised to pay the debts they owe to their former wives. Judges customarily release the prisoners before Christmas and at the beginning of the summer recess of the courts.

Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro released six men; Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne, three; Superior Judge Joseph Sabath, two, and Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg one. Judge Sbarbaro and Superior Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz each left one alimany prisoner in jail, probably for the rest of the summer.

The dispensations released the men before the expiration of six months, the maximum time a man may be kept in jail for contempt of court in an alimony case.

EDWARD HUGHES FUNERAL RITES SET FOR MONDAY

The popularity of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes is expected to bring thousands to funeral services for him at 9:30 a. m. Monday in St. Matthew's Roman Catholic church, Albany and Walnut sts. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery, Evanston.

The body of Hughes arrived here yesterday from New York, where the secretary died Wednesday of a heart attack, and was taken to the undertaking chapel at 2346 Madison st. Gov. Green ordered all state offices to be closed Monday. The city hall and county building offices also will be closed the day of the funeral and will not reopen until after the July 4th holiday.

Hughes never met defeat as a candidate for elective office in 30 years of campaigning, which ended last fall when his health became frail. In January he announced he would not be a candidate for any office.

TICKET AGENTS STRIKE RATHER THAN WEAR TIES

Because they didn't want to wear ties, 14 ticket agents went on strike yesterday at the Union Motor Coach Terminal, 1157 Wabash av. Passengers encountered some minor inconveniences as a result, but bus movements were not delayed.

A dress requirement for ticket agents at the bus terminal is that they wear white shirts and dark ties. Recently the agents asked permission to wear sport shirts, explaining that they could not always get their white shirts back from their laundries on time. The company authorized the sport shirts—but with ties, as usual.

The agents donned the sport shirts, but one by one dropped the ties. Yesterday the morning shift of five reported sans ties, and James Reid, terminal manager, gave a ruling: No ties, no work. The five walked out. The evening shift also stayed away. The agents are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, an AFL affiliate. Their average pay is $250 a month.

Day by Day on the FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

June 30, 1944.

THE farm will have a short crop of straw this year. Several of the oat fields have headed out unusually short and in places the stalks are only four or five inches high.

The shortage of straw will not be as serious as it seems now, however, for an oat stalk will come close to doubling its length after it has headed out. The hot days have pushed the oats rapidly and most of the fields are in excellent condition considering their late planting. The stalks are a deep rich green indicating plenty of nitrogen in the soil. In fact the oats look much better than the corn fields which are a lighter green.

Wet Plantings Short.

It is easy to tell where the oats were put into wet ground. In these spots the grain is unusually short and is a yellowish green. Where the oats were put in properly they are tall and green, promising a good yield. Neighboring farmers have reported some trouble with corn borers in the oats. These pests will take a big bite out of a field's yield.

The men have been busy filling the big silo at the dairy barn. Into it they are putting a field of clover which is close by. Along with the chopped hay, the manager is adding from 80 to 100 pounds of molasses per ton of fodder. This helps preserve the hay and make it more palatable to the stock.

The clover field is so rank as a result of the constant rains and hot weather that some of the stalks stand more than five feet high. Stems on some of the plants are as thick as a finger. The cattle would not be able to make full use of this hay if it were not chopped and ensiled because it is so coarse. After it soaks in the silo for a while the animals will be able to eat it stems and all and there will be no waste.

Alfalfa Goes in Next.

After the silo is filled the men will start to fill the hay keeper which stands beside it. Into it will go the first cuttings of alfalfa from several fields. The rest of the hay will be baled and the other silos filled with corn silage.

An easy formula for determining the value of a ton of corn silage is to add the value of 270 pounds of mixed hay at current prices to the value of the corn grain. Thus a ton of corn silage now would be worth approximately $7.70, as there are five bushels of grain in a ton of silage.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THREE common garden crops which are helped by slight hilling at this time of the year are snap beans, lima beans, and sweet corn. This need not be a special chore, but can be done merely by slight alteration in the cultivating process.

In using a hoe or hand cultivator, a necessary process at this time of the year, the gardener can hill these

Sweet corn is benefited by slight hilling, which gives the stalks additional soil anchorage as protection against storms during the latter half of the growing season. Hilling of the bean crops also helps to keep the plants erect and thus prevents the pods from resting on the ground, where they are subject to decay.

RUSH CHANGES IN PRICE FIXING FOR DEADLINE

Extended Controls Effective Today.

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—Government officials worked late tonight preparing scores of changes directed in new price control and wage stabilization legislation effective tomorrow, with indications that not all the revisions can be made on time.

The deadline was emphasized as President Roosevelt signed into law the bill embracing the changes, which extends price control and wage stabilization one year, to July 1, 1945.

Rebuked for Changes.

Altho he lauded congress for renewing the life of the office of price administration and other government stabilization agencies the President mildly rebuked the lawmakers for changes which he believed will "weaken and obstruct the effective enforcement of the law."

He said that "if it should turn out that the enforcing officers encounter serious difficulties in bringing chiselers and black market operators to book, I shall ask congress to remove the difficulties."

An OPA spokesman said that only the amendment providing for adjustment of textile prices had named a specific deadline for the revisions ordered.

Directed to Reflect Parity.

"But we are doing our best to make all the changes by the time the extension act is effective," he added.

Another amendment provides that the administration shall take steps to maintain the prices of all basic agricultural commodities, as well as prices of others where growers were encouraged to increase production, to reflect to producers either the current price or the highest average price during the first nine months of 1942.

Under a preliminary interpretation, an agriculture department spokesman said this would require action raising the price of wheat, cotton, peanuts, and possibly some other commodities, since these were selling under parity as of June 15.

Say Line Can Be Held.

Mr. Roosevelt said that altho some of the amendments would make it more difficult to hold the price line, the enforcing agencies had advised him that "in their opinion the line can be held against inflationary price increases if they are supported in a firm administration of the law in accordance with its basic objectives."

Among changes which OPA has said will affect enforcement adversely is the amendment providing for a reduction of present penalties of price ceiling violations where defendants can show the violations are not willful.

Medinah Club Auction Date Set by Court

BY AL CHASE.

The 42 story Medinah building, 505 N. Michigan av., will be sold at auction on Aug. 14 before Special Master Joseph F. Elward. Announcement of the sale yesterday followed confirmation by Federal District Judge Campbell of an offer of $790,000 made by John J. Mack, who contemplates operating the building as a hotel.

Mack's offer, which was $80,000 higher than his original guaranteed bid of $710,000 made a few weeks ago, was raised in order to meet an offer made yesterday by Alex T. Spare, attorney for a syndicate.

Would Pay 17 Cents on Dollar.

Spare's offer would make possible a payment of 17 cents on the dollar to owners of income bonds. Mack at once raised his bid so that bondholders would receive the same return if he obtained the property.

Mack will have the right at the auction to exceed by 5 per cent any bid that is higher than his $790,000 offer, Edward said. The Mack bid is subject to unpaid taxes which exceed $500,000, Henry L. Phoenix, attorney for Arthur C. Youngberg, federal trustee in the reorganization, said.

To Auction Jeffery Terrace.

Elward announced that an auction sale of the Jeffery Terrace apartments, at the southwest corner of 71st pl. and Jeffery av., would be held before him on Aug. 7. The minimum price is $233,020, the figure at which the property was recently appraised.

The five story building contains six stores on Jeffery and 70 unfurnished two, four, and five room apartments. A bond issue was defaulted in 1943. Daniel Comstock is reorganization trustee.

OFFER EVIDENCE AGAIN IN CEMENT PREJUDGING PLEA

The Marquette Cement Manufacturing company yesterday asked the 7th United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the second time for permission to introduce documentary evidence purporting to show that the federal trade commission had prejudged the issues in its anti-trust action against Marquette and 74 other Portland cement manufacturers.

The evidence Marquette seeks to place before the court consists of 23 commission publications which the company alleges prove that the FTC was biased and prejudiced in its 1943 order restraining the cement companies from continuing the use of their "destination price" formula. The case has been taken to the Court of Appeals and Marquette's second petition is part of that action.

The petition accuses the commission of suppressing evidence, engaging in a campaign of villification against the cement industry, and usurping judicial functions. Atty. Edward A. Zimmerman, Marquette's counsel, said the outcome of the suit would determine "whether a bureau shall have complete rule over American business as well as the power to deprive business of recourse to courts of law."

HOG PRICES SAG FIRST TIME IN LAST 2 WEEKS

Hog prices in the Chicago stock yards yesterday experienced the first setback in two weeks as receipts increased slightly and most packers reduced their purchases because of the holiday early next week.

The price average declined 5 cents a hundred pounds. Most of the better grades brought steady prices, but a larger run of sows at weak to 10 cents lower prices pulled the average down to $12.75, lowest since Monday. The $13.75 top was unchanged.

The cattle supply was small, but demand was slow and weakness prevailed in most branches. Lambs sold at mostly steady prices.

Foundries Top WPB Labor Recruitment List

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—Foundries engaged in urgent programs and listed on jointly approved lists of the WPB and the war man power commission are now on the number one list for labor recruitment, WPB reported today. Special priority assistance will be granted in order to cover manufacture of certain castings, a shortage of which is retarding the heavy truck program.

WESTERN STATE OIL COMMISSION ASSAILS FEDERAL CONTROLS

Denver, Colo., June 30 (AP).—Federal regulations governing the oil industry were assailed today as the Interstate Oil Compact commission, representing 13 oil producing states, opened its quarterly meeting. Gov. John C. Vivian of Colorado charged that government "restrictions" lessen the incentive of oil men to explore for new pools.

"If they will get rid of a lot of federal regulations, they will let our people prospect for oil," he declared. "We have plenty of oil in the west."

Hiram M. Dow, the commission's New Mexico representative, asserted that the government "gradually but surely is edging its way into the oil business." He said the government, by reacquisition of lands thru 27 agencies, controls the mineral rights to 383,500,000 acres of land, or approximately one-fifth the area of the United States.

The departments of interior and agriculture are the principal controling agencies, and "much confusion" has resulted from their "differing policies," Dow said.

Third Quarter Lumber Quota Sliced 12 Pct.

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—The war production board tonight announced lumber quotas for major industries in July, August, and September, leaving it to WPB's various industry divisions to divide each quota among individual companies.

Demands of the army, navy, industry divisions, and other claimants had to be cut about 12 per cent to match the supply, WPB said.

Part of New Curbs.

The WPB industry divisions requested 6 billion 356 million board feet of lumber on behalf of major industrial consumers under their control. WPB reduced this to 5,219,882,000 board feet. Lumber requirements of the army, navy, maritime commission, and other direct military and export agencies were trimmed to a lesser extent, and these claimants were alloted 1,614,004,000 board feet.

Larger Quota to Containers.

The WPB containers division received the largest allotment, 1,871,337,000 board feet, to be used in the manufacture of boxes, baskets, and other containers. The lumber and lumber products division was allotted 1,128,419,000 for the manufacture of millwork, hardwood flooring, tanks and vats, and similar wood products.

Other allotments included: Automotive, 133,977,000 board feet; consumers' durable goods, 383,419,000; mining, 1,750,000; office of war utilities [for power and telephone and telegraph companies], 13,050,000; petroleum, 14,268,000; shipbuilding, 135,546,000; textile, 52 million.

U. S. DEBT TOPS 200 BILLIONS, REPORT SHOWS

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—The treasury's daily statement for the close of business Wednesday, issued today, reported the gross public debt, including guaranteed obligations of the government at $200,230,958,523.06.

The public debt has been increasing sharply recently, reflecting war bond sales in the fifth war loan drive. Each bond sale automatically increases the debt. Since the war loan drive opened June 12, the public debt has increased more than 11 billion dollars.

Terms Ruling on Safety Box a Precedent

Illinois Appellate Judge Scanlan, in a recent opinion, set a precedent in Illinois law when he reversed a Municipal court decision and ruled that a safety deposit box is subject to garnishment, Atty. Benjamin B. Morris, plaintiff in the suit, said yesterday.

The decision was reached after protracted litigation, during which Morris had obtained a judgment for $2,457 against the defendants, Robert S. and Myrtle G. Beatty, in Municipal court.

Starts Action Against Bank.

However, the judgment was not satisfied and Morris began garnishment proceedings against the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, which, as garnishee, had possession of a safety deposit box rented by the defendants, in order that the box be opened and the valuables it allegedly contained be examined and applied to payment of the judgment, the opinion said.

The Municipal court, however, discharged the garnishee after a hearing at which time it was indicated that after the bank was served with a garnishment summons it had permitted Robert Beatty access to the box on three different occasions. The box then was surrendered by Beatty to the bank, the opinion said.

Morris contended that had the garnishee complied with the provisions of the garnishment act it would have refused the defendants access to their safety deposit box until after the final proceedings, at which time the contents of the box would have been intact and could have been applied on payment of the judgment on the court's authorization.

Holds Bank at Fault.

The opinion said the bank had no right to permit the defendant to open the box after the garnishment summons was served, and asserted:

"It certainly would be a reproach to the administration of the law if it were held that the law may successfully be defied by human agencies, and that courts cannot make their processes effective merely because valuable property may be locked in a steel safe or receptacle. The court's orders may not be baffled merely because the lessee or owner of a safety deposit box refuses to surrender the key by which the box is opened.

"If therefore, there is any method by means of which such boxes can be opened the courts have ample power to direct those who have possession and control of such boxes to open them by any available method."

Judge Scanlan ordered the case remanded to the Municipal court with directions that a judgment be entered against the garnishee for the amount of the plaintiff's judgment against the defendants.

MADISON STREET LOT BOUGHT BY MARSHALL FIELD

Another step in the acquisition by Marshall Field of most of the block bounded by Madison, Market and Monroe sts. and the river was taken yesterday when he bought the 42 by 97 foot lot at 367 W. Madison st. from the Jennings trust for $50,000. The land is assessed at $63,959 and the four story building at $12,946. Ward Farnsworth was broker for Field. It was reported that Field also has nearly completed negotiations for the 25 feet of frontage at No. 361, adjoining yesterday's purchase. If this frontage is obtained, Field will have all of the block's Madison st. frontage except the Weston hotel.

UTILITIES LEAD AS STOCKS GAIN ON G.O.P. HOPES

Rails, Few Leaders Stage Comeback.

The revival of junior power and light company issues was credited mainly to brightening of Republican hopes. War news and peace time business prospects stimulated others. The outlook for favorable reorganization rulings, together with earnings possibilities connected with sharp debt reductions for most roads, aided the carriers.

Large Sales and Volume.

Rising tendencies generally predominated after a steady opening and advances of fractions to 2 or more points were in the majority at the close. Volume was aided by large blocks of so-called "penny" performers, with United corporation coming out in one 40,000 share deal and other transactions ranging from 1,000 to 10,000. The pace slowed toward the last as many customers adjusted accounts for the holiday.

Transactions in June totaled 37,712,751 shares, the largest monthly volume since May, 1940, and the heaviest June dealings since 1933. In May transactions totaled 17,228,380 shares.

BOND PRICES UNEVEN.

New York, June 30 (AP).—Altho the bond market was irregular today, the list had many strong spots at the close, reflecting further quiet buying of investment rated issues and continued speculative demand for secondary rails. The Associated Press rail average edged up 0.1 to 89.6.

CHICAGO LIST CLIMBS.

Prices advanced yesterday as turnover increased to 45,000 shares on the Chicago Stock exchange. Active issues registering fractional gains included Chicago corporation, Armour, and General Finance. Among 11 new 1944 highs were Abbott Laboratories, up 2¼; Fansteel Metallurgical, up 2, and Bethlehem Steel, up 1½. Other gains were fractional.

13 INDUSTRIAL STILLS TO AID IN WHISKY OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—Half the August output of 13 industrial alcohol producers, in addition to the full production of the 127 established beverage distillers, will be devoted to liquor making during the distiller's month-long "holiday" from war production, the WPB announced today.

WPB said the combined output would total about 50 million gallons of whisky, gin, cordials and other hard liquors. Registered distilleries, those normally in the whisky business, are the only plants which will be permitted to make whisky in August. If they choose, they may make neutral spirits for blended whiskies.

The industrial alcohol plants which hold permits to sell high-proof spirits for beverage purposes are classified separately by WPB. They may sell their output only for blending purposes or for the manufacture of gin, cordials and similar liquors. Only 50 per cent of their output may be so used, because the industrial plants were not completely engaged in beverage production before the war.

Chicago Steel Production Kept High Despite Labor Shortages

The steel industry in the Chicago area, despite acute man power shortages, has managed to keep most of its furnaces in operation, industry spokesmen disclosed yesterday.

They indicated steel production in the district was higher than the current national average of 95.7 per cent of capacity compared with 99 per cent in May, as reported by the war production board. The drop was ascribed to a shortage of 50,000 workers which in turn resulted in the idleness of 30 open hearth furnaces thruout the country. Because of this, the nation is losing 200,000 tons of ingot steel a month, it was estimated.

Need Several Thousand More.

The industry spokesmen said they would welcome several thousand more workers at once. They said, however, the shortage has not prevented the operation of producing units.

They reported temporary shutdowns of furnaces for repairs, but said this was a normal procedure even in peace time, altho the time needed for restoring the units was longer than customary because of the lack of workers. Some tonnage has been lost because of this, they said.

WPB Calls Conferences.

Hopeful of restoring production to or near the May level of 99 per cent, the WPB has summoned its iron and steel industry advisory committee to a conference in Washington July 7. The steel labor advisory committee will meet a few days later.

Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of WPB, warned that production may fall short of meeting the steel allotments already made for war and essential civilian purposes in July, August, and September. About 180,000 workers of the steel industry's labor force of approximately 600,000, have been inducted into the army and navy, it was reported.

Formal Order on Milwaukee Road Issued

Federal District Judge Igoe, overruling all objections, yesterday issued a formal order approving the interstate commerce commission's amended plan for reorganization of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The proposal will be submitted to creditors of the company and, if ratified by them, will become effective as of Jan. 1, 1944.

As amended last April, the plan scales the road's capitalization down from 707 million dollars, as reported in 1935 when it went into bankruptcy, to $553,090,698, and sets up alternate schedules for distribution of new securities. One of these is based upon the liquidation of the company's $10,442,828 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan thru first mortgage bonds, and the other on liquidation thru cash payments.

Legal Fees Approved.

Judge Igoe also approved the payment of $509,000 in fees and expenses of attorneys and committees in connection with the reorganization. The Chicago law firm of Sidley, McPherson, Austin & Burgess, counsel for the institutional investor group, was awarded the largest fees—$92,500—plus $9,415 for expenses.

The amended plan calls for fixed interest debt of $92,176,972, on which interest will amount to $3,481,903 annually.

Judge Igoe also authorized Milwaukee trustees to join with other tenant roads in an ICC petition to allow refunding of 44 million dollars of first mortgage 3¾ per cent series E bonds of the Chicago Union Station company and $49,121,000 first mortgage 4 per cent bonds of the Kansas City Terminal Railroad company.

I. C. Asks Bond Issue.

In Washington, D. C., the Illinois Central railroad and one of its leased lines, the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans railroad, asked the ICC for authority to issue jointly $8,700,000 of first refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds, series D. The bonds are to be exchanged for a similar amount of Illinois Central 4 per cent leased line stock, the entire outstanding issue.

The Illinois Central already has acquired $1,289,700 of the certificates, which it plans to cancel and retire, according to the petition.

COURT UPHOLDS NORTH SHORE'S USE OF L TRACKS

Federal District Judge Igoe yesterday refused to upset an arrangement for the handling of North Shore line trains over tracks of the Chicago Rapid Transit company south of Howard st., that has been in effect since the settlement of a strike in 1942.

Leo Hassenauer, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said he would appeal the court's decision upholding a recent report of Master in Chancery Warren Canaday.

Since the strike, North Shore trains have been operated within the city limits by Rapid Transit company crews, members of another union.

Brooklyn Utility Plans 42 Million in Financing

Philadelphia, Pa., June 30 (AP).—The Brooklyn [N. Y.] Union Gas company registered today with the securities and exchange commission 12 million dollars in 25 year sinking fund debentures. Thru their issuance and public sale the company plans to refinance its entire outstanding funded debt. It also plans concurrent issuance and private sale of 30 million dollars principal amount of general mortgage sinking fund bonds, 3¾ series, due Aug. 1, 1969, to be issued under a new mortgage.

WILLYS OWNERS WILL DECIDE ON SORENSEN STOCK

New York, June 30—[Special].—A special meeting of Willys-Overland Motors stockholders has been called for July 12 to ratify options to be granted to Charles E. Sorensen, new president, to purchase 100,000 common shares at $3 a share. Announcement of the meeting disclosed that Sorensen will receive a salary of $52,000 a year under a 10 year contract, instead of $100,000 a year as originally planned.

It was reported earlier this week that the treasury department had objected to the higher salary for Sorensen, who resigned early this year as executive vice president of the Ford Motor company.

Stockholders also will be asked to waive their preemptive rights to the 100,000 shares to be optioned to Sorensen as well as to shares heretofore authorized for sale to employes and for issuance to preferred stockholders in conversion of preferred stock.

WLB TELLS CIO TO TERMINATE TIMKEN STRIKE

Hearing Is Refused Until Tieup Ends.

Washington, D. C., June 30 (AP).—The war labor board today in a telegram directed local union officials of the United Steelworkers union [CIO] to terminate a strike at the Timken Roller Bearing company, Canton, O., plants, which it said is seriously interfering with production of vital war materials. The telegram also was sent to Philip Murray, CIO president.

The strike, which began Monday, is over union dissatisfaction with the handling of grievances in one department and as spread to other plants. More than 9,000 workers are involved.

A hearing on the issues, scheduled for July 5, has been postponed because of the strike, and no action will be taken by either the national or regional board until the work stoppage ends, the board said.

At a meeting in Canton, the strikers countered the back to work order with a petition for assurance that their requests will be considered. No decision was reached on complying with the order.

6,500 Idle in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 30 (AP).—More than 6,500 war workers were made idle in Pennsylvania today by strikes in a steel mill, another industrial plant and five coal mines. At the same time four other strikes ended and about 2,550 workers returned to their jobs.

At the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation plants two old strikes ended, but one new one started. At the company's Homestead plant 30 CIO cranemen quit work in a wage dispute, quickly bringing idleness to 400 to 500 other employes.

At the company's Clairton plant 81 CIO chippers and pilers voted to return to work at midnight, ending a 24 hour walkout which has kept 1,200 idle. At the company's wheel works at McKees Rocks 25 CIO wheel rollers returned to work, ending a 12 day idle period for 300.

Spring and Axle Plant Shut.

At the Leggett Spring and Axle company plant at East Monongahela a strike of 416 CIO workers forced a complete shutdown.

A three day strike of 138 CIO workers ended at the Sterling Steel Foundry company plant at Braddock. Union leaders said the company had signed a contract.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation Vesta No. 4 mine at Vestaburg remained idle for the third day with 1,300 workers out, but at Vesta No. 5, about 900 returned to their jobs today. Disputes centered on demands for $50 vacation pay.

Demand Second Engine.

At the H. C. Frick Coke company Bridgeport mine in Fayette county, about 650 workers quit work, demanding two locomotives in a section of the mine now served by one.

About 700 miners failed to report at the Cranberry Improvement company colliery, near Hazleton, because they said "extra pay" for certain jobs had been eliminated.

The Maple Hill and Knickerbocker collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company near Shenandoah remained closed a second day, with 2,700 idle, in a wage dispute.

20,000 Demonstrate.

Camden, N. J., June 30 (AP).—More than 20,000 employes of the New York Shipbuilding and Drydock corporation demonstrated for 20 minutes today in protest against what they termed a delay in new contract negotiations. The assembly was during a change in shifts and production was not delayed.

WHEAT FUTURES DIP ON HEDGING, PROFIT SELLING

Wheat contracts closed ⅝ to ⅝ cent a bushel lower yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after an early advance of 1 to 1¼ cents on mill buying and short covering. September wheat reached $1.60⅝ before hedging sales and profit taking developed and mill buying fell off.

Oats finished unchanged to ⅝ cent higher. The advance was on July, which was bought by shorts. Rye was 1 to 1¼ cents lower, developing independent weakness because of large tenders of cash grain. Barley was ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher.

TIGHTER U. S. JOB RULES BECOME EFFECTIVE TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The referral job program on which the war man power commission is pinning its hope of getting necessary labor into the most war essential jobs will go into effect tomorrow.

WMC Chairman McNutt, who today announced that local plans to put the program into effect had been completed in every state, disclosed that the order, which imposes federal control on all male workers, will include women in its scope in many communities.

The referral plan prohibits the hiring of full time workers except thru the United States employment service or thru arrangements approved by it. Under the plan, a person seeking a new job must present himself to the local USES office or such other agency—for instance a union hiring hall—as may be designated by USES. There the person will be offered employment in the industries and cities where workers are needed most urgently.

"Step Toward Slave Labor."

The plan was assailed by Rep. Buffet [R., Neb.], who said it was a "decisive step toward slave labor battalions." His remarks, entered in the Congressional Record, contained a blast at "McNutt's national service edict."

The control of women workers will be effective in 16 states, including Michigan and Ohio, the WMC said in a press release.

McNutt said that in extending the plan to women, regional directors have acted under authority given them by headquarters to adapt the program to local conditions and requirements.

He said he believed the plan will bring about the transfer of many workers from less essential to essential industries and from surplus labor areas to those in which it has become difficult to obtain labor. When sufficient labor cannot be found in the home area of a war plant, the USES will arrange for the recruiting of labor in other regions.

Priority Groups Named.

The 12 regional directors have named local man power priority committees which will have the responsibility for determining what priority, if any, an industry or business will have in hiring workers. These committees were named after consultation with the various management-labor groups. McNutt said both employers and employes will have the right to appeal from any decisions of local WMC officials.

The WMC said that on each area committee will be representatives of WMC, the war and navy departments, the war production board, selective service, the maritime commission, the smaller war plants corporation, the aircraft resources control office and war food administration. The office of defense transportation will be represented where there are transportation problems and civil service where government employment is an important factor.

Concern Over Production.

The plan goes into operation at a time when both the WPB and military leaders are showing concern about production problems. Only yesterday the joint chiefs of staff reported to President Roosevelt that some persons believe the war is as good as won and feel they can quit their war jobs.

The WPB, reporting on May production, asserted there is no room in the picture for "cutback jitters" and wishful thinking that the war is over.

The WMC today announced a brightening of the labor reserve situation in 10 areas, including Newton, Ia., and Quincy, Ill., which were reclassed from group 2 to group 3.

GIVES BAIL IN THEFT CASE.

David Kindelberger, 18, of 6205 Woodlawn ave., was released on $500 bond yesterday on larceny charges resulting from his arrest yesterday in Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s store, 63d and Halsted sts.

700 CHICAGO PLANTS GET LABOR CEILINGS IN FREEZE PROGRAM

Chicago's job freeze program which goes into effect today will embody only the "minimum and most liberal" controls provided in the general plan announced a month ago by the war man power commission, Lester Brown, area director, said yesterday.

Nearly 700 of the city's larger plants were assigned labor ceilings yesterday by mail, Brown said, and all others employing eight or more workers will not be allowed to employ more than were on their last March pay rolls.

Workers seeking new jobs must seek them thru the United States employment service, but may refuse those offered them for any of a score of reasons, and no worker will be required to take a job that pays less than he is capable of earning or which does not use his highest skill, Brown said.

Interviewers have been trained in each of the 17 USES offices here to direct workers to plants with labor priorities, and all private fee employment agencies will be made agents of the USES on application, if they have state licenses, Brown said.

BARNES SETS UP PROCEDURE FOR SANITY HEARINGS

A ruling by Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court yesterday established a procedure to be followed by the United States attorney's office in handling sanity hearings of defendants prior to their indictment.

The ruling was made in the case of Harrison M. Parker, 67, long known as a promoter, who was arrested May 27 in his home at 4534 Greenwood av. on a charge of sending obscene matter thru the mail. After he was taken before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and held in $7,500 bond, Asst. U. S. Atty. Francis J. McGreal asked the District court for an order to have Parker examined to determine his mental condition.

Judge Denies Motion.

This motion was denied yesterday by Judge Barnes, who pointed out that the state of Illinois has provided elaborate machinery for inquiry into the sanity of persons alleged to be mentally ill, and one of the methods is by proceeding before a judge of a county court.

"If the district attorney thinks the defendant is incapable of advising with counsel and of conducting his defense, or if he thinks that the defendant was not legally responsible at the time of the commission of the alleged offense, his oath of office does not require him to proceed with the prosecution, and he may dismiss the complaint before the commissioner. The state authorities undoubtedly will exercise such jurisdiction as should be exercised by them, if any should be."

Upholds Court Authority.

Judge Barnes emphasized he was not holding that the court is without authority to inquire into the sanity of the defendant, and said: "Even if the power to examine into the sanity of the defendant exists, an exercise of a wise discretion does not require that jurisdiction be availed of."
